Appeal from the United States Bankruptcy Court for the Northern District of California

Hon. Leslie Tchaikovsky, Bankruptcy Judge, Presiding.

Before: RADCLIFFE,² SMITH, DUNN, and Bankruptcy Judges.

¹ This disposition is not appropriate for publication. Although it may be cited for whatever persuasive value it may have (see Fed. R. App. P. 32.1), it has no precedential value. See 9th Cir. BAP Rule 8013-1.

² Hon. Albert E. Radcliffe, U.S. Bankruptcy Judge for the District of Oregon, sitting by designation.

1 David Relito Tan (Debtor) appeals the denial of his discharge.
2 We AFFIRM.

3 PROCEDURAL HISTORY

4 Debtor filed a petition for Chapter 7³ relief on February 11, 5 2000. Philippine National Bank (PNB), the predecessor in interest to 6 Appellee Tranche 1 (SVP-AMC), Inc. (Tranche 1), filed an adversary
7 proceeding to deny Debtor his discharge under 11 U.S.C. §§ 727(a)(2), (3) 8 and (4). PNB moved for summary judgment, which the bankruptcy court 9 granted on the §§ 727(a)(2) and (4) claims. Debtor appealed to a prior 10 panel, which reversed and remanded, finding a genuine issue of material 11 fact on the issue of fraudulent intent. Tan v. Philippine Nat'l Bank (In 12 re Tan), No. NC-03-1198 (9th Cir. BAP Dec. 16, 2003) (Tan I).

13 The bankruptcy court then entered orders granting a limited 14 waiver of Debtor's attorney-client privilege (the waiver order), denying 15 Debtor's motion to require recusal (the recusal order), and prohibiting 16 Debtor from introducing any documents at trial (the sanctions order).

17 After trial, the bankruptcy court entered its memorandum of 18 decision, Tranche 1 (SVP-AMC), Inc. v. Tan (In re Tan), 350 B.R. 488 19 (Bankr. N.D. Cal. 2006) (Tan II), and judgment denying Debtor his 20 discharge, from which Debtor has timely appealed pro se.

- 6) Interelectric Systems, Inc. (Interelectric); and
- 7) Stresscrete Negros, Inc. (Stresscrete Negros)

(the Undisclosed Interests). He also failed to disclose that he was an officer or director of and/or held at least a five (5) percent equity ownership interest in Ford Edsa, Greenergy, Stresscrete, Central, Advanced, and Teledyne (the Undisclosed Positions).

After the adversary proceeding was filed, Debtor filed an amended Schedule B and SOFA on July 6, 2000. On amended Schedule B, in addition to the Disclosed Interests, he listed the Undisclosed Interests, except Advanced,⁴ Interelectric, and Stresscrete Negros. On his Amended SOFA, in addition to the Disclosed Positions, he listed the Undisclosed Positions, except Advanced.

JURISDICTION

The bankruptcy court had jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 1334 and § 157. We have jurisdiction under 28 U.S.C. § 158.

ISSUES

- 1) Whether the court abused its discretion in sanctioning Debtor by prohibiting him from introducing documents as evidence at trial;
- 2) Whether the court abused its discretion in allowing Debtor one week instead of two (as requested) to decide whether to assert an advice of counsel defense;

⁴ The bankruptcy court found that Debtor listed his interest in Advanced on the amended schedules. Tan II, 350 B.R. at 491 n.1. However, Advanced does not appear on same.

1 court must affirm the judgment below unless (1) it has a definite and 2 firm conviction that the bankruptcy court committed a clear error of 3 judgment in the conclusion it reached upon weighing the relevant factors, 4 (2) the bankruptcy court applied the wrong law, or (3) the bankruptcy 5 court rested its decision on clearly erroneous findings of material fact.
6 Delay v. Gordon, 475 F.3d 1039, 1043 (9th Cir. 2007).

7 Legal conclusions are reviewed de novo. Roberts v. Erhard (In re 8 Roberts), 331 B.R. 876, 880 (9th Cir. BAP 2005), aff'd, __ Fed. Appx. __, 9 2007 WL 2089041 (9th Cir. Jul. 19, 2007). Factual findings, including 10 intent to defraud and whether there was justification for failure to keep 11 records, are reviewed for clear error. Baker v. Mereshian (In re 12 Mereshian), 200 B.R. 342, 345 (9th Cir. BAP 1996) (intent to defraud); 13 Robertson v. Dennis et.al. (In re Dennis), 330 F.3d 696, 703 (5th Cir.
14 2003) (justification).

15 Review under the "clearly erroneous" standard is significantly 16 deferential. Baker, 200 B.R. at 345. The appellate court should not 17 reverse unless it is left with a definite and firm conviction that a 18 mistake has been committed. Id. "The reviewing court may not reverse 19 simply because it is convinced it would have decided the case 20 differently." Id. "Where there are two permissible views of the 21 evidence, the fact finder's choice between them cannot be clearly 22 erroneous." Id. The reviewing court must give due regard to the 23 opportunity of the bankruptcy court to judge the credibility of 24 witnesses. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 8013; Thiara v. Spycher Bros. (In re 25 Thiara), 285 B.R. 420, 427 (9th Cir. BAP 2002). This deference is also 26 given to inferences drawn by the bankruptcy court. Id.

1 DISCUSSION

2 I. Sanctions Order

3 Debtor argues the bankruptcy court abused its discretion in 4 entering the sanctions order.⁵ The history is as follows:

5 On June 21, 2004, PNB served Interrogatories on Debtor. The 6 Interrogatories consisted of thirteen (13) separate written 7 interrogatories numbered 10 through 22.⁶

8 After remand, PNB contended Debtor had waived the attorney-client 9 privilege. This triggered a series of motions and responses, as well as 10 11 ⁵ The sanctions order is an interlocutory order, U.S. v.

12 Westinghouse Elec. Corp., 648 F.2d 642, 651 (9th Cir. 1981), and thus now 13 properly before us, even though it was not denominated in Debtor's notice 14 of appeal. Disabled Rights Action Committee v. Las Vegas Events, Inc., 375 F.3d 861, 872 n.7 (9th Cir. 2004) (appeal of final judgment draws into question all earlier, non-final orders and rulings which produced the judgment).

15 ⁶ Interrogatories Nos. 10 through 20 ask Debtor to identify 16 documents in his or his attorneys' possession on February 11, 2000, which 17 relate to all the Disclosed Interests and all the Undisclosed Interests 18 except Stresscrete Negros and Interelectric. Interrogatory No. 21 asks 19 Debtor to identify documents and conversations which support his 20 contention that information which was omitted from his original petition 21 and schedules was not omitted with intent to hinder, delay or defraud a 22 creditor or his trustee. Interrogatory No. 22 asks Debtor to identify documents and conversations he had with any attorney that support his contention that he relied on the advice of counsel when he omitted assets and "interest" [sic] from his bankruptcy schedules, both original and amended.

23 The Interrogatories define "Document" as: "writings, drawings, 24 graphs, charts, photographs, phonorecords and other data compilations 25 from which information can be obtained." They define "identify" with 26 respect to a "Document" as: "a description of the nature of the DOCUMENT, the author of the DOCUMENT, the intended recipient of the DOCUMENT, if any, a brief summary of the contents of the DOCUMENT, the date of the DOCUMENT, and any other information necessary to identify the DOCUMENT."

1 document subpoenas served by PNB on Debtor's former law firms: 1) 2 Wendell, Rosen, Black and Dean (Wendell, Rosen); and 2) Kornfield, Paul & 3 Nyberg. The motions culminated in the bankruptcy court's July 19, 2004 4 memorandum decision, which held that Debtor's attorney-client privilege 5 had been waived with respect to attorney-client communications during the 6 period November 1, 1998 to February 11, 2000.

7 The time to answer the Interrogatories ran shortly after the 8 bankruptcy court's decision on waiver. Debtor did not timely respond.
9 There ensued a series of letters between him and PNB's counsel, and 10 multiple extensions granted by PNB's counsel. Finally, on January 14, 11 2005, PNB filed a motion to compel Debtor to answer the Interrogatories.
12 The motion to compel (along with a status conference) was heard on March 13 3, 2005. Only PNB's counsel appeared. Debtor was in the Philippines and 14 had requested a continuance.⁷ By order entered March 11, 2005, the 15 bankruptcy court granted PNB's motion and ordered Debtor to answer the 16 Interrogatories on or before April 3, 2005 (order compelling answers).

17 On April 3, 2005, Debtor served his answers (the Original 18 Answers). On April 15, 2005, PNB's counsel wrote to Debtor advising him 19 20 21 ⁷ Neither Debtor nor Tranche 1 has provided a transcript of the 22 March 3, 2005 hearing; however we may take judicial notice of the minutes 23 thereof. Harris v. U.S. Trustee (In Re Harris), 279 B.R. 254, 261 n.4 24 (9th Cir. BAP 2002) ("A judicially noticed fact must be one not subject to 25 reasonable dispute in that it is . . . capable of accurate and ready 26 determination by resort to sources whose accuracy cannot reasonably be questioned."). The minutes may be found on the docket of adversary proceeding 00-04199. Although the memorandum and declaration in support of the motion to compel are part of the record on appeal, the motion to compel is not. It may be found at docket number 125 in adversary proceeding 00-04199.

1 the Original Answers were deficient in several respects and requesting 2 revised answers by April 29, 2005.

3 On April 29, 2005, Debtor faxed revised answers (the Revised 4 Answers) to PNB's counsel. The faxed Revised Answer to Interrogatory No.
5 21 refers to portions of Debtor's Opening Brief in Tan I, which were not 6 attached to the Revised Answers. In a letter accompanying the Revised 7 Answers, Debtor stated he would send the originals together with the 8 attachments by courier on April 30, 2005. PNB did not receive the 9 original of the Revised Answers until May 16, 2005.

10 On June 6, 2005, PNB moved to compel further answers to 11 Interrogatories Nos. 10-14, or alternatively for sanctions, including 12 default or the exclusion of evidence. The motion was heard on July 7, 13 2005. PNB's counsel and Debtor appeared. The motion was granted.⁸

14 The sanctions order was entered on August 2, 2005. It recounts 15 part of the above procedural history and makes a finding that the 16 Original and Revised Answers "were evasive and incomplete in that they 17 (a) refer to no documents at all or (b) refer generally to documents that 18 may or may not have been in the Defendant's possession on the [sic] 19 February 11, 2000, without identifying such documents." Sanctions Order 20 at 3, Aug. 2, 2005. The sanctions order cites Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(a)(3) 21 and (a)(4) as the bases for the sanctions, and finds Debtor's "failure to 22 answer at all and/or to provide unevasive and complete answers is willful 23

25 ⁸ Neither Debtor nor Tranche 1 has provided a transcript of the July 26 7, 2005 hearing. However, we are able to take judicial notice of the minutes of this hearing, Harris, 279 B.R. at 261 n.4, which can be found on the docket of adversary proceeding 00-04199.

1 and disobedient conduct not shown to be outside the control of the 2 Defendant." Id. The sanctions order prohibited Debtor from introducing 3 any "documents" (as defined by the Interrogatories) at trial.

4 While the sanctions order, on its face, precludes all documentary 5 evidence, it appears to have been limited by subsequent rulings, i.e., at 6 a Pre-trial Conference on April 17, 2006, the bankruptcy court stated it 7 would consider, at trial, whether to allow Debtor to present evidence as 8 to new transactions that may not have been covered in the 9 Interrogatories. At trial, the court admitted Debtor's Exhibits A 10 through K. In its opinion, the court defined the sanctions order as 11 precluding Debtor from introducing any documents that related to the 12 various corporations in which he held an interest. Tan II, 350 B.R. at 13 496, further noting that excepted from the sanctions order were any 14 documents relating to two corporations [presumably Interelectric and 15 Stresscrete Negros] which PNB had discovered after remand. Tan II, 350
16 B.R. at 496 n.9.⁹

17 As noted in National Medical, 792 F.2d at 910-11, we review 18 sanctions orders for an abuse of discretion. Sanctions such as 19 preclusion of documentary evidence are available after a party has failed 20 to comply with an order to provide discovery. Fed. R. Civ. P.
21 37(b) (2) (B) (made applicable by Fed. R. Bankr. P. 7037).¹⁰ Although we do

23 ⁹ PNB "had not requested production of documents related to these 24 corporations since it did not know of their existence." Tan II, 350 B.R. at 496 n.9.

25 ¹⁰ Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b) (2) (B) provides in pertinent part:

26 (continued...)

1 not have a transcript of the July 7, 2005 hearing, the findings and 2 conclusions stated in the sanctions order permit review.

3 Two issues arise with regard to the sanctions order. First, 4 whether Debtor violated the order compelling answers, and if so, whether 5 a sanction precluding documentary evidence at trial was appropriate.

6 The bankruptcy court did not err when it found non-compliance.
7 The Original Answers were inadequate. Debtor did not answer under oath, 8 in violation of Fed. R. Civ. P. 33(b)(1) (made applicable by Fed. R.
9 Bankr. P. 7033). He answered Interrogatories Nos. 11-14 and 20, and Nos.
10 15-19 collectively, instead of separately, in violation of Fed. R. Civ.
11 P. 33(b)(1). He also answered Interrogatories Nos. 10-14 and 20 by 12 incorporating materials from the "Edison-Hubbard case" without specifying 13 which materials, or attaching them.¹¹ Finally, he answered

16 If a party . . . fails to obey an order to 17 provide or permit discovery, including an order made 18 under subdivision (a) of this rule . . . , the court 19 in which the action is pending may make such orders 20 in regard to the failure as are just, and among 21 others the following:

22 (B) An order . . . prohibiting that 23 party from introducing designated matters 24 in evidence.

25 ¹¹ "The general rule is that answers to interrogatories should be 26 complete in and of themselves, and should not refer to pleadings, depositions, or other documents." Dipietro v. Jefferson Bank, 144 F.R.D.
279, 282 (E.D.Pa. 1992); see also American Rockwool, Inc. v.
Owens-Corning Fiberglas Corp., 109 F.R.D. 263, 266 (E.D.N.C. 1985)

is not a suitable response to a legitimate request for discovery,"

1 Interrogatories Nos. 15-19 by incorporating portions of his Opening Brief 2 in Tan I, without specifying which portions, or attaching the Brief.

3 The Revised Answers were also inadequate. Many courts have found 4 that "evasive or incomplete" answers violate an order to compel answers 5 to interrogatories. See, e.g., Cromaglass Corp. v. Ferm, 344 F. Supp.
6 924 (M.D. Pa. 1972); Jaffe v. Grant, 793 F.2d 1182 (11th Cir. 1986); Von 7 Der Heydt v. Kennedy, 299 F.2d 459 (D.C. Cir. 1962). The Revised Answers 8 to Interrogatories Nos. 10-14 were incomplete and evasive.

9 Interrogatories Nos. 10-14¹² are in the following form:

10 IDENTIFY each and every DOCUMENT you had in your 11 possession or which was in the possession of your 12 attorneys on February 11, 2000, the date of filing your 13 bankruptcy petition, involving, pertaining to, relating 14 to or in any way connected to [name of corporation].¹³

15 Debtor's Revised Answers to these Interrogatories are all 16 substantially the same, as follows:

17 On the date of my filing on February 11, 2000

18 1. I do not believe I had in my possession documents 19 related to [name of corporation]. I was working from 20 memory on the approximate stock ownership I had.¹⁴

21 ¹¹(...continued)
22 interpreting Fed. R. Civ. P. 33(c) (now (d)).

23 ¹² Interrogatory No. 20 duplicates No. 12, except "Edison Mobile 24 Hydraulic" was identified as "Edison Mobil Hydraulics."

25 ¹³ The corporations to which these Interrogatories refer are: a) 26 Edison Global (Interrogatory No. 10); b) Teledyne (Interrogatory No. 11);
c) Edison Mobile (Interrogatory No. 12); d) Edison Industries (Interrogatory No. 13); and e) Filipinas (Interrogatory No. 14).

¹⁴ Revised Answer to Interrogatory No. 10 re: Edison Global added:
"and the amount of unreimbursed expenses and salaries owed me at that

1
2 2. Since I traveled between the Philippines, Hong Kong, 3 and the U.S. frequently, as a matter of practice, all 4 corporate and business documents are kept by the 5 corporate officers and managers of each company. I, of 6 course can secure a copy of documents as needed.

7 For my filing, I did not secure any specific documents 8 because I was pretty sure of the extent of my 9 stockholdings.¹⁵

10 3. In my first response Part 2, submitted April 3, 2005 11 [the Original Answers] I made a general reference to 12 documents related to [name of corporation] that would be 13 in the possession of my attorneys [from the PNB-Edison 14 Hubbard case-see Interrogatories Nos. 10 & 11] since the 15 interrogatory asked about documents in the possession of 16 my lawyers on February 11, 2000.¹⁶ 17 I however would not be able to identify each and every 18 document in my attorneys [sic] possession on that 19 specific date.

20 4 I do not believe I gave my attorneys any new document 21 related to [name of corporation] preparatory to my filing 22 on February 11, 2000. (emphasis added)

23 It was not error to hold that answering according to "belief" 24 more than five (5) years after the main case and Adversary proceeding had

25 ¹⁴ (...continued)
26 stage."

¹⁵ Revised Answer to Interrogatory No. 10 re: Edison Global added:
"In any case the 'current market values' would be 'unknown'."

¹⁶ Debtor's Original Response stated the following:

There were no documents in my possession or in the possession of our attorneys as of February 11, 2000 relating to Teledyne Marketing, Edison Mobile Hydraulics, Edison Industries and Filipinas Electric and Meter Co., other than those that were carried over from the Edison Hubbard case under which PNB had claimed security rights on David Tan's stocks in these companies. Edison Mobile Hydraulic (Interrogatory No. 12) and Edison Mobil Hydraulics (Interrogatory No. 20) refer to the same company.

1 been filed and after the Interrogatories had been pending for ten (10) 2 months was evasive and/or incomplete. Further, Debtor acknowledged his 3 attorneys possessed documents (from the Edison-Hubbard case) as of 4 February 11, 2000, but declined to identify them, even after the 5 privilege issues had been resolved by the waiver order eight (8) months 6 before the Original and Revised Answers were served. He conceded the 7 documents from his lawyers were released to him starting in December 8 2004, with Kornfeld, Paul & Nyberg (which held "about 90%" of the 9 documents) starting to release them on January 7, 2005, with final 10 delivery on March 31, 2005. Still, his Revised Answers, submitted almost 11 one month later, did not identify a single document. It was not error to 12 hold that this conduct violated the order compelling answers.

13 As to Interrogatories Nos. 15-19 and 22, Debtor responded by 14 denying the existence of any documents pertinent thereto.¹⁷ In response
15 to Interrogatory No. 21, he did not "identify" within the Interrogatory's 16 definition, a single document pertinent thereto.¹⁸

17

18

19 ¹⁷ Part 2 of the Original Answers, and the Revised Answers to 20 Interrogatories Nos. 15-19 stated that neither Debtor nor his attorneys 21 had documents as of February 11, 2000, with regard to Ford Edsa, 22 Greenergy, Central, Stresscrete (denial based on Debtor's "belief"), and 23 Advanced. Part 1 of the Original Answers to Interrogatory No. 22, does 24 not identify (and denies the existence of) any documents [held at any time] supporting Debtor's contention that he relied on the advice of counsel when he omitted assets and interest [sic] from his bankruptcy schedules, both original and amended.

25 ¹⁸ Part 1 of the Original Answers to Interrogatory No. 21 does not 26 identify any documents [held at any time] supporting Debtor's contention that information omitted from his original bankruptcy petition and schedules was not omitted with the intent to hinder, delay or defraud.

1 The sanction imposed was preclusion of submission by Debtor of 2 all documentary evidence. The court later limited this ruling to 3 documents covered by the Interrogatories. In general, a Fed. R. Civ. P.
4 37(b) sanction must be "just" and must be specifically related to the 5 particular "claim" which was at issue in the order to provide discovery.
6 Navellier v. Sletten, 262 F.3d 923, 947 (9th Cir. 2001). Sanctions are 7 warranted for failure to obey a discovery order as long as the 8 established issue bears a reasonable relationship to the subject of 9 discovery that was frustrated by sanctionable conduct. Id.¹⁹

10 The sanction here meets these criteria. Debtor had been stalling 11 for ten (10) months. Eight months had elapsed since the entry of the 12 waiver order defining the scope of the privilege waiver. Almost one full 13 month had elapsed between the time Debtor asserted he received the last 14

15 ¹⁹ "Dispositive" sanctions such as dismissal (Fed. R. Civ. P.
16 37(b)(2)(C)), default (Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(C)), and their functional 17 equivalents (i.e. refusing to allow the disobedient party to support or 18 oppose designated claims or defenses (Fed. R. Civ. P. 37(b)(2)(B)), or 19 precluding any evidence as to a prima facie element of a claim, United 20 States v. Sumitomo Marine & Fire Ins. Co., Ltd., 617 F.2d 1365, 1368-69 21 (9th Cir. 1980), must meet a higher standard. First, noncompliance must 22 be due to willfulness, fault or bad faith. Computer Task Group, Inc. v.
23 Brotby, 364 F.3d 1112, 1115 (9th Cir. 2004). Then the court must weigh 24 five factors:

25 (1) the public's interest in expeditious resolution of 26 litigation; (2) the court's need to manage its docket; (3) the 27 risk of prejudice to the [opposing party]; (4) the public 28 policy favoring disposition of cases on their merits; and (5) 29 the availability of less drastic sanctions.

30 Here, the bankruptcy court only precluded documents (and by later 31 rulings, only certain documents). It allowed live testimony, and in fact 32 Debtor, Debtor's former attorney, Michael Cooper, and Francis Suatengco, 33 testified on Debtor's behalf. The sanction was not "dispositive."

1 shipment of records from his attorneys and the Revised Answers. The 2 Interrogatories related to all three of Tranche 1's claims, thus 3 preclusion of documents relating thereto was within the court's 4 discretion. Id. The sanction bore "a reasonable relationship to the 5 subject of discovery that was frustrated by the sanctionable conduct.
6 Id.²⁰ The court did not abuse its discretion by entering the sanctions 7 order.

8 II. Denial of Extension to Assert "Advice of Counsel" Defense

9 The bankruptcy court conducted a status conference on March 18, 10 2004. At the conference, PNB's counsel indicated he intended to file a 11 new motion for summary judgment. He also indicated that, during the Tan 12 I appeal, Debtor had asserted a defense of advice of counsel in 13 connection with any omissions or misstatements in his schedules and SOFA.
14 PNB's counsel contended that Debtor had thereby waived the attorney-15 client privilege and indicated a desire to conduct discovery concerning 16 Debtor's communications with Wendel, Rosen. The minutes in the adversary 17 proceeding docket indicate that, at the status conference, the bankruptcy 18 court gave Debtor one week to file a statement as to whether he wished to 19 assert an advice of counsel defense. The court stated that if Debtor 20 filed nothing, it would assume he wanted to assert the defense and 21 discovery would be reopened. The status conference was continued to May 22 20, 2004.

23
24 ²⁰ Five years after the commencement of the main case and adversary 25 proceeding, Debtor disavowed any document relating to Interrogatory No.
26 22 (see supra note 17), and did not identify any document responsive to Interrogatory No. 21 (see supra note 18). Thus, in any case, Debtor should have suffered no prejudice by the Sanctions Order as to these interrogatories, both of which bear on Debtor's intent.

1 Debtor contends he asked for two (2) weeks to decide whether to 2 assert the defense, and the bankruptcy court's denial of the extra week 3 was an abuse of discretion.²¹ We find no written motion in the record 4 requesting two (2) weeks. The minutes of the status conference in the 5 adversary proceeding docket do not indicate Debtor orally moved for two 6 (2) weeks at the status conference. Further, Debtor has not supplied a 7 transcript of the status conference. As such, we cannot determine if 8 Debtor, in fact, moved for a two (2) week period. Even assuming such a 9 request was made and denied,²² we cannot ascertain the court's rationale.
10 In light of these omissions, meaningful review is impossible. Fed. R.
11 Bankr. P. 8009(b)(5); McCarthy v. Prince (In re McCarthy), 230 B.R. 414, 12 417 (9th Cir. BAP 1999).²³

13
14 ²¹ Debtor does not appear to appeal the waiver order itself, instead 15 referencing it with respect to the time given to choose an advice of 16 counsel defense and perhaps as an "unfavorable ruling" giving rise to a 17 claim of bias. Aplt. Brief at 7-8. Nevertheless, even assuming the waiver 18 order is before us, Debtor has appended an insufficient record to provide 19 meaningful review. He has not supplied the waiver order itself, or the 20 motions/responses leading up to it. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 8009(b)(6) 21 (motion/response); 8009(b)(3)(order). The motion/responses also include 22 the documents submitted by Wendel, Rosen (in its efforts to quash PNB's 23 subpoena duces tecum), PNB's responses thereto and briefs by all sides on 24 the issue. There are also two letters, one from PNB, the other from 25 Debtor, referenced in the bankruptcy court's July 19, 2004 Memorandum 26 Decision but not supplied in the excerpts of record or even listed on the adversary proceeding docket. As best we can discern from the adversary proceeding docket, approximately seventeen (17) documents relate to the waiver order. Debtor has provided only the bankruptcy court's Memorandum of Decision on the issue.

²² If an oral order exists, it is appealable. Ingram v. ACandS, Inc., 977 F.2d 1332, 1339 n.7 (9th Cir. 1992).

²³ Likewise, at the same conference, Debtor asserted the bankruptcy

1 Even assuming meaningful review is possible, the court's time-2 line for asserting the advice of counsel defense is reviewed for an abuse 3 of discretion. We find no reversible error. The only possible prejudice 4 in claiming an advice of counsel defense is waiver of the attorney-client 5 privilege. Even assuming the privilege was waived by assertion of the 6 defense, Debtor does not explain how he was prejudiced. In fact, he 7 admits that even after production of "a few" boxes of documents from 8 Debtor's lawyers, "Plaintiff did not find any real evidence of fraudulent 9 intent on the part of the Debtor." Aplt. Brief at 7-8, Jan. 25, 2007.

10 III. Bias/Partiality/Recusal

11 Debtor argues the bankruptcy court was "biased." He did not, 12 however, move for recusal at trial. "[W]hile failure to move for recusal 13 at the trial level does not preclude raising the issue on appeal, an 14 appellant bears a greater burden in demonstrating that the judge erred in 15 failing to grant recusal." Noli v. C.I.R., 860 F.2d 1521, 1527 (9th Cir.
16 1988).

18

19 ²³(...continued)

20 court granted PNB a thirty (30) day extension on the setting of the next 21 status conference. He assigns this as error. However, as noted, he has 22 not supplied a transcript of the March 18, 2004 hearing. Neither do the 23 minutes entered in the adversary proceeding docket note the extension.
24 (The minutes do note that the conference was "continued until 5/20/04 . .
25 . [and] may be rescheduled to the date of hearing on motion for summary 26 judgment."). As such, meaningful review of the alleged thirty (30) day extension is impossible. Fed. R. Bankr. P. 8009(b)(5); McCarthy, 230 B.R.
at 417.

Even if a thirty (30) day extension was in fact allowed, and is thus reviewable, we cannot find an abuse of discretion in the bankruptcy court re-scheduling a status conference.

1 Under 28 U.S.C. § 455(a): "Any justice, judge, or magistrate
2 judge of the United States shall disqualify [herself] in any proceeding 3 in which [her] impartiality might reasonably be questioned." The 4 substantive standard is: "Whether a reasonable person with knowledge of 5 all the facts would conclude that the judge's impartiality might 6 reasonably be questioned." United States v. Hernandez, 109 F.3d 1450, 7 1453 (9th Cir. 1997) (internal quotation omitted). In general, the 8 alleged bias or impartiality must arise from "an extrajudicial source and 9 not from conduct or rulings made during the course of the proceeding."
10 United States v. $292,888.04 in U.S. Currency, 54 F.3d 564, 566-67 (9th 11 Cir. 1995). Judicial rulings alone almost never constitute a valid basis 12 for a bias or partiality motion. Focus Media v. National Broadcasting 13 Co. (In re Focus Media, Inc.), 378 F.3d 916, 930 (9th Cir. 2004). To 14 warrant recusal based on a non-extrajudicial source, the movant must show 15 the trial court's substantive rulings and remarks were products of 16 "deep-seated favoritism or antagonism that [made] fair judgment 17 impossible." Liteky v. United States, 510 U.S. 540, 555 (1994).

18 Aside from general assertions, Debtor points to three instances 19 of alleged bias or partiality. The first, counter-intuitively, derives 20 from a ruling favorable to him. On his schedules, Debtor listed the 21 values of all but one of the Disclosed Interests as "unknown." Tranche 1 22 argued on summary judgment and at trial that this was an indication of 23 fraudulent intent. At trial, the bankruptcy court rejected this 24 argument. Despite this favorable ruling, Debtor posits Tranche 1's 25 argument on the impact of "unknown" values somehow prejudiced the court.
26 Next he argues the bankruptcy court's finding at trial that he lacked

1 credibility, in light of his "equally persuasive evidence," showed 2 prejudice. Finally, he argues the sanctions order showed "manifest 3 partiality." All these alleged instances of bias or partiality derive 4 from the bankruptcy court's rulings and events within the litigation.
5 Without more, they do not support a recusal motion. Focus Media, 378 6 F.3d at 930. Debtor points to nothing to sustain his burden that the 7 bankruptcy court was influenced by any "extrajudicial" source, or 8 displayed "deep-seated favoritism or antagonism that [made] fair judgment 9 impossible." Liteky, 510 U.S. at 555. The bankruptcy court did not 10 abuse its discretion in failing to recuse itself.

11 IV. Standard of Proof in § 727(a) Actions

12 Debtor argues the appropriate standard of proof in a 13 § 727(a) action is "beyond reasonable doubt." It is well established, 14 however, that the standard is "preponderance of the evidence." Grogan v.
15 Garner, 498 U.S. 279, 289 (1991); Beauchamp v. Hoose (In re Beauchamp), 16 236 B.R. 727, 730 (9th Cir. BAP 1999), aff'd, 5 Fed. Appx. 743, 2001 WL
17 246057 (9th Cir. 2001). The bankruptcy court did not err in applying 18 this standard.

19 V. Evidence of "Hardship" Irrelevant

20 At trial, Debtor attempted to proffer evidence that denial of 21 discharge would work an extreme hardship upon him, to which Tranche 1 22 objected. The bankruptcy court excluded the evidence as irrelevant.
23 Debtor argues this was error.

24 Relevant evidence must relate to a fact that "is of consequence 25 to the determination of the action." Fed. R. Evid. (FRE) 401.
26 "Irrelevant evidence" is inadmissible. FRE 402. We could find (and the 1 parties cite) no authority discussing "hardship" as a defense in a 2 § 727(a) action. However principles of statutory construction, case/law 3 on the use of § 105(a), and sound public policy all support a conclusion 4 that hardship is not available as a defense and is irrelevant in a 5 § 727(a) action.

6 In analyzing a statute's text, the court's job is to apply the 7 statute as written, not to "add nor to subtract, neither to delete nor to 8 distort." Arizona State Bd. For Charter Schools v. U.S. Dept. of Educ., 9 464 F.3d 1003, 1007 (9th Cir. 2006) (quoting 62 Cases, More or Less, Each 10 Containing Six Jars of Jam v. United States, 340 U.S. 593, 596, (1951)).
11 Section 727(a) in general, and §§ 727(a)(2), (a)(3), and (a)(4)(A) in 12 particular, contain no "hardship" defense; nor do they require a 13 plaintiff to show "lack of hardship" as part of its prima facie case.²⁴ A 14 similar defense does exist in the context of the dischargeability of 15 student loans. See 11 U.S.C. § 523(a)8).²⁵ "It is a general principle of 16 statutory construction that when Congress includes particular language in 17 one section of a statute but omits it in another section of the same Act, 18 it is generally presumed that Congress acts intentionally and purposely 19 in the disparate inclusion or exclusion." Barnhart v. Sigmon Coal Co., 20 Inc., 534 U.S. 438, 452 (2002). In a similar vein, several sections of 21 § 727(a) contain affirmative defenses on grounds other than hardship, 22 see, e.g., § 727(a)(3) (justification for failure to keep or maintain 23

24 ²⁴ See discussion infra as to the prima facie elements of 25 §§ 727(a)(2), (a)(3), and (a)(4)(a).

26 ²⁵ Section 523(a)(8) generally excepts student loans from discharge
"unless excepting such debt from discharge . . . will impose an undue hardship on the debtor and the debtor's dependents."

1 records); § 727(a) (5) (satisfactory explanation for loss or deficiency of 2 assets), again evidencing Congress' intent to exclude a hardship defense.
3 Boudette v. Barnette, 923 F.2d 754, 756-57 (9th Cir. 1991) (doctrine of 4 expressio unius est exclusio alterius, "creates a presumption that when a 5 statute designates certain . . . things or manners of operation, all 6 omissions should be understood as exclusions").

7 Although not cited specifically, Debtor's argument is an appeal 8 to invoke § 105(a)'s equitable principles.²⁶ However, § 105(a) does not 9 "empower courts to issue orders that defeat rather than carry out 10 explicit provisions of the Bankruptcy Code. . . ." Sea Harvest Corp. v.
11 Riviera Land Co., 868 F.2d 1077, 1080 (9th Cir. 1989). Section 105(a) 12 has been rejected as a separate means to revoke discharge. Disch v.
13 Rasmussen, 417 F.3d 769 (7th Cir. 2005). Similarly, in Yadidi v.
14 Herzlich (In re Yadidi), 274 B.R. 843, 852-53 (9th Cir. BAP 2002), this 15 court held its use was not "appropriate" to deny a Chapter 7 discharge, 16 when denial was not supported under § 727. If § 105(a) cannot be used as 17 a sword to deny a discharge, it follows that it should not be permitted 18 to be used as a shield to defend against denial of discharge.

19 20 ²⁶ Section 105(a) provides:

21 The court may issue any order, 22 process, or judgment that is necessary or 23 appropriate to carry out the provisions of 24 this title. No provision of this title 25 providing for the raising of an issue by a 26 party in interest shall be construed to preclude the court from, sua sponte, taking any action or making any determination necessary or appropriate to enforce or implement court orders or rules, or to prevent an abuse of process.

1 Finally, as a matter of policy, allowing a defense of "hardship"
2 to a debtor who has perpetrated a fraud under §§ 727(a)(2) and (a)(4) 3 would contravene Congressional policy that the principal purpose of the 4 Bankruptcy Code is to grant a "fresh start" to the "honest but 5 unfortunate debtor." Grogan, 498 U.S. at 286-87 (1991); Marrama v.
6 Citizens Bank, __ U.S. __, 127 S.Ct. 1105, 1107, 166 L.Ed.2d 956 (2007).
7 Further, a denial of discharge almost always imposes a "hardship" on a 8 debtor. In the vast majority of Chapter 7 cases, an unmanageable debt 9 load is what motivates the filing. Allowing a "hardship" defense would, 10 for the most part, negate the provisions of § 727(a). The court did not 11 commit an error of law and thereby abuse its discretion in precluding 12 evidence of hardship.²⁷

13 VI. Suatengco Hearsay Testimony

14 Francis Suatengco testified at trial to explain what a 15 "qualifying share" is under Philippine corporate law and to attempt to 16 corroborate Debtor's testimony regarding the extent of Debtor's interests 17 in certain of the corporations at issue. At several points, his answers 18 were precluded by sustained hearsay objections. Debtor complains of the 19 exclusions in his Supplemental Brief at 4-6. A careful reading indicates 20 the main error asserted is the sanctions order precluding the documentary 21 evidence upon which Suatengco attempted to testify. The sanctions order 22 is discussed above. In any case, the hearsay rulings were not error.

23

24 ²⁷ Debtor's Reply Brief argues denial of discharge under his 25 circumstances violates the 8th Amendment's ban on cruel and unusual 26 punishment. Aside from Debtor's failure to raise this argument at trial, we need not consider issues raised for the first time in a Reply brief.
U.S. v. Montoya, 45 F.3d 1286, 1300 (9th Cir. 1995).

1 In the first ruling, Debtor's counsel asked Suatengco if he knew 2 how many Stresscrete shares Debtor owned in 2000. Because Suatengco had 3 previously testified he had not become affiliated with Stresscrete until 4 2002, Tranche 1's attorney asked for foundation. Suatengco testified he 5 based his knowledge on an "earlier" document (the incorporation papers of 6 Stresscrete) that had not been admitted. At this point the bankruptcy 7 court sustained a hearsay objection.²⁸ The other ruling occurred when 8 Debtor's counsel asked whether Stresscrete Negros ever became 9 operational. Suatengco's response was based not on personal knowledge, 10 but instead on corporate documents, such as a project study, which were 11 not in evidence. The bankruptcy court sustained a hearsay objection.

12 Both these rulings were proper. Suatengco's testimony was based 13 on corporate documents, not his personal knowledge. FRE 602. The 14 documents were hearsay in that they were written statements, other than 15 statements made by a declarant testifying at trial, the contents of which 16 were being offered for the truth of the matters asserted (i.e., Debtor's 17 interest in Stresscrete and whether Stresscrete Negros ever became 18 operational). FRE 801(c); Spear v. Global Forest Products (In re
19 Heddings Lumber & Bldg. Supply, Inc.), 228 B.R. 727, 730 (9th Cir. BAP 20 1998).²⁹ The statements were inadmissible. FRE 802.

25 ²⁸ The bankruptcy court also ruled that the evidence was cumulative 26 because Debtor could testify as to the value of his holdings.

²⁹ Debtor did not argue that any exception to the hearsay rule applied for either ruling.

1 VII. Fraudulent Intent (Including Gain/Harm Not Necessary
2 Element)

3 Tan I's mandate on remand was to try the issue of fraudulent 4 intent on the § 727(a)(2)³⁰ and (a)(4)³¹ claims. Its legal analysis, as 5 set out below, is the law of the case. Caldwell v. Unified Capital Corp.
6 (In re Rainbow Magazine, Inc.), 77 F.3d 278, 281 (9th Cir. 1996); see 7 also 9th Cir. BAP R. 8013-1 (unpublished opinions may be cited as law of 8 the case).

9 In order to deny discharge under § 727(a)(2)(A) or (B), the 10 Plaintiff must show that 1) the debtor transferred or concealed property;

11 _____ 12 ³⁰ Section 727(a)(2) provides:

13 (a) The court shall grant the debtor a discharge, 14 unless:

15 (2) the debtor, with intent to hinder, 16 delay or defraud a creditor or officer of 17 the estate charged with custody of property under this title, has transferred, removed, destroyed, mutilated, or concealed-

18 (A) property of the debtor, 19 within one year before the date of the filing of the petition; or 20 (B) property of the estate, after 21 the date of the filing of the 22 petition.

23 ³¹ Section 727(a)(4)(A) provides:

24 (a) The court shall grant the debtor a discharge, 25 unless:

26 (4) the debtor knowingly and fraudulently, in or in connection with the case-

(A) made a false oath or account.

1 2) the property was property of the debtor, if pre-petition, or property 2 of the estate if post-petition; 3) the transfer or concealment occurred 3 within one year before bankruptcy was filed, or after the petition was 4 filed, and 4) the debtor acted with the intent to hinder, delay, or 5 defraud a creditor or officer of the estate.³² Tan I at 4-5 (citing In re 6 Devers, 759 F.2d 751 (9th Cir. 1985)). Failure to list assets in a 7 debtor's bankruptcy schedules can constitute concealment. Tan I at 5 8 (citing In re Scott, 172 F.3d 959 (7th Cir. 1999)).

9 To deny a discharge under § 727(a)(4)(A), the plaintiff must show 10 that 1) the debtor knowingly and fraudulently made a false oath; and 2) 11 the false oath related to a material fact. Tan I at 5 (citing In re 12 Aubrey, 111 B.R. 268, 273 (9th Cir. BAP 1990)). A false oath may involve 13 a false statement or omission in the debtor's schedules. Tan I at 5 14 (citing In re Beaubouef, 966 F.2d 174 (5th Cir. 1992)).

15 Under both §§ 727(a)(2) and (a)(4), intent must be actual, not 16 constructive. Tan I at 6 (citing In re Devers, 759 F.2d 751 (9th Cir.
17 1985)). Fraudulent intent may, however, be established by circumstantial 18 evidence, or by inferences drawn from a course of conduct.³³ Tan I at 6 19 (citing In re Wills, 243 B.R. 58, 64 (9th Cir. BAP 1999)).

20 Debtor argues the court erred, as a matter of law, in not 21 requiring proof that anyone "gained" by his fraud or was "harmed"

22

24

25 ³² The hinder, delay, or defraud elements are disjunctive. Each 26 independently provides a basis for denying discharge. Beauchamp, 236 B.R. at 731.

³³ Tan I held that Debtor's disclosures in his Amended Schedules and SOFA do not absolve him of fraud. Tan I at 13-14.

1 therefrom. In this context, we construe "gain" and "harm" as flip-sides 2 of the same coin; "harm" to creditors logically follows "gain" by Debtor.

3 As to § 727(a)(4), this argument mainly goes to "materiality."
4 Assuming arguendo "materiality" was still an issue at trial,³⁴ a statement 5 is material if it relates to the debtor's business transactions or 6 estate, or concerns the discovery of assets, business dealings or the 7 existence or disposition of property. Tan I at 5 (citing In re Chalik, 8 748 F.2d 616, 618 (11th Cir. 1984)). A false statement or omission may be 9 material even if it does not cause direct financial prejudice to 10 creditors. Tan I at 5 (citing Wills, 243 B.R. at 63 (9th Cir. BAP 11 1999)). A discharge may be denied if the omission adversely affects the 12 trustee's or creditors' ability to discover other assets or to fully 13 investigate the debtor's pre-bankruptcy dealings and financial condition.
14 Tan I at 5 (citing Wills, 243 B.R. at 63).

15 Similarly, for § 727(a)(2) purposes, "lack of injury to creditors 16 is irrelevant. . . ." Wills, 243 B.R. at 65. "Transfers made with the 17 intent to hinder or delay a creditor's collection efforts may be grounds 18 for denial of discharge even if the transfer does not reduce a debtor's 19 total assets." Id.

20 It follows that gain or harm is not a necessary element to 21 §§ 727(a)(2) and (a)(4) claims. Even if they were, the bankruptcy court 22 found (which was not clear error), that Debtor did have "something to 23 gain" by failing to disclose the Undisclosed Interests, as evidenced by 24

25 ³⁴ Tan I's mandate on remand arguably precluded issues as to 26 "materiality". Tan I at 11:6-8 ("only question with regard to debtor's nondisclosure of these business interests is whether the failure to disclose was done with an intent to defraud") (emphasis added); Id. at 14:13-14 ("there is a question of fact as to debtor's intent in failing to disclose his interest in certain assets").

1 the description contained in the Millenium Plan of his role as the "prime 2 mover" in the Power One Group. Tan II, 350 B.R. at 494 n.7.

3 Although Debtor's summary judgment materials have not been 4 provided, it appears from the facts recited in Tan I that predominantly 5 the same evidence was presented on summary judgment as was adduced at 6 trial. Trial was held, in large part, to gauge Debtor's credibility.³⁵ 7 The bankruptcy court found Debtor "generally lacking credibility." Tan 8 II, 350 B.R. at 494. It found he was "lying" when he said he "forgot" to 9 list Central, Advanced, and Greenergy, Tan II, 350 B.R. at 495, and when 10 he stated Greenergy has either never operated or had not operated since 11 1995. Id. We must give these credibility determinations deference.
12 Thiara, 285 B.R. at 427. A finding that Debtor was "lying" indicates 13 purposeful deceit.

14 One of Debtor's main assertions is that he merely owned 15 "qualifying shares"³⁶ in the Philippine corporations, holding little, if 16

17 ³⁵ Debtor's fraudulent intent turns largely on the veracity of his 18 explanations as to why he omitted the Undisclosed Interests and 19 Positions. In his briefs, Debtor addresses those explanations, however, 20 with few exceptions, he fails to make specific reference to the relevant 21 portions of the record as required by Rule 8010(a)(1)(D). Neither we nor 22 Tranche 1 are obliged to search the record unaided for error, 23 particularly a voluminous record, such as the one before us. Dela Rosa v.
24 Scottsdale Memorial Health Systems, Inc., 136 F.3d 1241 (9th Cir. 1998).
25 However, given Debtor's pro se status, we have endeavored to fairly 26 review the record provided, which appears consistent with the bankruptcy 27 court's recitations. Tan II, 350 B.R. at 494-95. The bankruptcy court did 28 not find the Debtor's explanations credible.

³⁶ Suatengco explained "qualifying shares" as follows: Under 29 Philippine law, a corporation's president must be a director. In turn, a 30 director must own shares in the corporation. Thus, a corporation will 31 often buy a number of shares on behalf of its president to "qualify" him 32 for that position. The shares are listed on the books as paid for by the 33 shareholder. The president does not receive share certificates,

1 any value.³⁷ He argues Suatengco corroborated this. However, Debtor 2 references nothing in the record supporting such corroboration. Any 3 attempted corroboration was properly excluded as hearsay.³⁸ Further, 4 contrary to Debtor's testimony, various exhibits admitted at trial show 5 Debtor paid for more than de minimis interests, that is, more than mere 6 "qualifying shares."

7 There is ample other evidence indicating fraudulent intent.
8 First, there is the sheer scope of the omissions, interests in seven (7) 9 corporations, positions in six (6). Next there is Debtor's continuing 10 concealment at his § 341(a) meeting of creditors, including:

- 11 1) Upon inquiry from the Trustee, failing to mention any 12 errors in his Schedule B or SOFA;
- 13 2) Upon inquiry from PNB's counsel, denying any equity 14 interest in Ford Edsa (although he admitted he was a 15 director);
- 16 3) Denying that Greenergy had any assets and asserting that it 17 had stopped operating at least four (4) years previously, 18 although admitting he owned shares;³⁹ and
- 19 4) Denying he owned any other interests in companies that were 20 not already listed on Schedule B.

21 Another of Debtor's explanations for the omissions is that 22 several of the corporations were dormant. However, Tranche 1's Ex. 9, 23 ³⁶(...continued)

24 typically doesn't receive dividends, and if he or she leaves their 25 position, the shares are forfeited.

26 ³⁷ A low value of concealed or transferred assets is a factor in determining a debtor's intent. Mereshian, 200 B.R. at 346.

³⁸ Michael Cooper, Debtor's counsel at the time he filed his petition, did testify that Debtor's interests were "minuscule." However, he was referring to the "Disclosed Interests" and in any event had no firsthand knowledge, instead relying on Debtor, who the bankruptcy court found "not credible."

³⁹ Tranche 1's Ex. 12, Edison Global's audited Financial Statement for year-end 1997, showed Global Edison had loaned $107,000 to Edison Energy (Greenergy's prior name), and had invested $100,000 in same.

1 Stresscrete's "Millenium Plan," prepared in October, 1999 (just four (4) 2 months prepetition), described Debtor as the "prime mover" of the Power 3 One (fka Edison Industries) group, "the umbrella management and holding 4 company for a group of affiliated companies [including Teledyne], 5 specializing in niche markets within the electric power sector in the 6 Philippines."

7 All the foregoing evidence from the record, along with the 8 bankruptcy court's finding that Debtor was not credible, support the 9 conclusion that the court did not "clearly err" when it found Debtor had 10 the requisite fraudulent intent.

11 VIII. Failure to Keep Records

12 Section 727(a) (3) denies discharge when:

13 [The] debtor has concealed, destroyed, mutilated, 14 falsified, or failed to keep or preserve any recorded 15 information, including books, documents, records, and 16 papers, from which the debtor's financial condition or 17 business transactions might be ascertained, unless such 18 act or failure to act was justified under all of the 19 circumstances of the case.

20 The initial burden of proof under § 727(a) (3) is on the 21 plaintiff. Lansdowne v. Cox (In re Cox), 41 F.3d 1294, 1296 (9th Cir.
22 1994) (Cox II). In order to establish a prima facie case under 23 § 727(a) (3), the plaintiff must show (1) that the debtor failed to 24 maintain and preserve adequate records, and (2) that such failure makes 25 it impossible to ascertain the debtor's financial condition and material 26 business transactions. Id. What constitutes adequate records must be decided case by case based on debtor's business operations and sophistication. AVCO Fin. Services v. Sullivan (In re Sullivan), 111
B.R. 317, 321 (Bankr. D. Mt. 1990) (citing In re Horton, 621 F.2d 968 (9th

1 Cir. 1980) (construing 11 U.S.C. § 32(c)(2) under the Bankruptcy Act)).
2 The bankrupt must maintain "sufficient written evidence which will enable 3 his creditors reasonably to ascertain his present financial condition and 4 to follow his business transactions for a reasonable period in the past."
5 Cox v. Lansdowne (In re Cox), 904 F.2d 1399, 1402 (9th Cir. 1990) (Cox 6 I) (quoting In re Horton, 621 F.2d 968, 971 (9th Cir. 1980)). "Keep" 7 means to maintain a record, as in "to keep a diary." Peterson v. Scott 8 (In re Scott), 172 F.3d 959, 969 (7th Cir. 1999). "This language places 9 an affirmative duty on the debtor to create books and records accurately 10 documenting his business affairs." Id.

11 Debtor was a certified public accountant and a sophisticated 12 businessman, with interests and positions in numerous corporations. The 13 bankruptcy court found, that as such, he should be held to a high level 14 of accountability in record keeping. Tan II, 350 B.R. at 496-97 (citing 15 with approval Meridian Bank v. Alten, 958 F.2d 1226, 1230-31 (3rd Cir.
16 1992)). The bankruptcy court found Tranche 1 had met its burden to show 17 the inadequacy of the Debtor's records, as Debtor testified he did not 18 keep any records of any of his interests in the subject corporations.
19 Debtor does not forcefully argue this finding was error. Instead, he 20 concentrates on justification for the inadequacy.

21 Once the objecting party shows that the debtor's records are 22 absent or inadequate, the burden of proof shifts to the debtor to justify 23 the inadequacy or nonexistence of records. Cox II, 41 F.3d at 1296.
24 Debtor must show, by a preponderance of the evidence, that failure to 25 keep adequate business records was justified under all of the 26 circumstances in the case. Id. at 1297. "If the extent and nature of

1 the debtor's transactions were such that others in like circumstances 2 would ordinarily keep financial records, [he] must show more than that 3 [he] did not comprehend the need for them." Id. "In such cases, the 4 justification must indicate that because of unusual circumstances, the 5 debtor was absolved from the duty to maintain records [him]self." Id.
6 Factors which may be considered in making this factual determination 7 include debtor's education, the sophistication of the debtor's business 8 experience, the size and complexity of debtor's business, debtor's 9 personal financial structure, and any special circumstances. Singer 10 Sewing Co. v. Harmon (In re Harmon), 1992 WL 13624 at *5 (Bankr.W.D.
11 Tenn. Jan. 10, 1992) (cited with approval in Cox II, 41 F.3d at 1299).

12 The bankruptcy court found that Debtor "provided no explanation 13 to justify his failure to keep or preserve adequate documentation to 14 permit his financial condition and business transactions to be 15 ascertained." Tan II, 350 B.R. at 497. This was not clear error.

16 As to Edison Global, Teledyne, Edison Mobile, Edison Industries, 17 and Filipinas, Debtor explained in his Revised Answers to Interrogatories 18 that he:

19 traveled between the Philippines, Hong Kong and the U.S.
20 frequently, as a matter of practice, all corporate and 21 business documents are kept by the corporate officers and 22 managers of each company. I, of course can secure a copy 23 of documents as needed.

1 Tranche 1's Jud. Ntc. Ex. No. 19.⁴⁰ As to Ford Edsa and Stresscrete, he 2 explained he did not believe he owned any shares. Tranche 1's Jud. Ntc.
3 Ex. No. 19. As to Greenergy, Central, and Advanced, he explained he lost 4 awareness of the corporations entirely. Tranche 1's Jud. Ntc. Ex. No.
5 19. At trial, he reiterated that he could get the records upon request.

6 As noted above, the bankruptcy court found Debtor "generally 7 lacking credibility," Tan II, 350 B.R. at 494, and found he was "lying" 8 as to Central, Advanced, and Greenergy. Tan II, 350 B.R. at 495. These 9 credibility determinations must be given deference. Thiara, 285 B.R. at 10 427. Further, given Debtor's education, sophistication, and the size and 11 complexity of his business, the explanations, even if true, would be 12 insufficient. In general, "the demands of operating a business do not 13 excuse a debtor from keeping basic financial records." Pher Partners v.
14 Womble (In re Womble), 289 B.R. 836, 858 (Bankr. N.D. Tex. 2003), aff'd, 15 299 B.R. 810 (N.D. Tex. 2003), aff'd, 108 Fed. Appx. 993 (5th Cir. 2004).
16 Further, that a debtor transacts business with one or more small closely 17 held entities is generally no defense. Id.

18 The records' location is another factor. Debtor's interests were 19 in foreign corporations, with all but one (Edison Global) located in the 20 21 ⁴⁰ Likewise, in his Original Answers to Interrogatories, Debtor stated as to the Disclosed Interests:

22 I didn't need to maintain copies of 23 these stocks and the companies' financial 24 statements because they were just nominal 25 shares and I can get copies from the 26 accountants and corporate secretaries if I need them.

Tranche 1's Jud. Ntc. Ex. No. 19.

1 Philippines. Debtor chose to live in the United States and sought the 2 protection of its insolvency laws. Neither the creditors nor trustee 3 should have to venture overseas to ascertain Debtor's financial 4 condition.

5 Debtor argues his bankruptcy counsel advised him he did not need 6 substantiation, at least not at the time he filed his petition, and that 7 he retrieved the records when the trustee so requested. In certain 8 circumstances, if the corporate records were complete, accurate and were 9 promptly retrieved, this might provide some justification. It is 10 impossible, however, to retrieve documents that one has forgotten 11 existed, as Debtor claims for Greenergy, Central, and Advanced. If 12 Debtor would have kept even a rudimentary list of his holdings, he would 13 not have forgotten. Also, one cannot retrieve something that doesn't 14 exist. At trial, Debtor conceded he had no documentation, not even a 15 share certificate, with respect to his stock ownership in Edison Global 16 (the "mother" company and Debtor's most significant interest) and that 17 despite being president, he didn't know who the other shareholders were.
18 Tr. Trscpt. 47:13-48:5.

19 The court did not clearly err in finding Debtor did not provide 20 sufficient justification for his failure to keep records.

21 CONCLUSION

22 The bankruptcy court's evidentiary rulings, decision to deny 23 recusal and preclusion of documentary evidence as a discovery sanction, 24 were not abuses of discretion. Its legal conclusions that hardship is 25 irrelevant in § 727(a) actions and that prejudice to creditors is not a 26 necessary element of §§ 727(a)(2) and (a)(4) claims were correct. Its

1 factual findings that Debtor intended to defraud his creditors and/or the 2 trustee and that his financial records were inadequate without sufficient 3 justification, were not clearly erroneous.

4 The bankruptcy court's decision is AFFIRMED.
