DEATH-PENALTY CASE

Motion for Relief from Judgment
Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(6)

22
23 Petitioner Joseph Rudolph Wood III, who served our country in the Air 24 Force and received an honorable discharge, requests that this Court, pursuant to 25 Fed. R. Civ. P. 60(b)(6), grant relief from the final judgment in this case. Rule 26 60(b)(6) allows the Court, “upon such terms as are just,” to grant relief from a 27 final judgment for “any other reason justifying relief from the operation of the 28 judgment.” The rule gives the Court “a grand reservoir of equitable power to do

1 justice in a particular case.” Thompson v. Bell, 580 F.3d 423, 444 (6th Cir. 2009)
2 (Rule 60(b)(6) “confers broad discretion on the trial court to grant relief when 3 appropriate to accomplish justice; it constitutes a grand reservoir of equitable 4 power to do justice in a particular case and should be liberally construed when 5 substantial justice will thus be served.”).

6 Here, because of post-conviction counsel’s ineffectiveness, see Martinez v.
7 Ryan, 132 S. Ct. 1309 (2012), this Court did not address important, substantive 8 habeas claims that Mr. Wood raised on the merits. The Court did not address: (1) 9 the claim that the trial court prevented Mr. Wood from obtaining important 10 neurological mitigating evidence; (2) the claim that counsel was ineffective for 11 failing to impeach police officer Anita Sueme with an inconsistent statement that 12 reasonably would have led finders-of-fact to find that she altered Mr. Wood’s gun 13 when she picked it up and started to unload it; and (3) the claim that appellate 14 counsel had a conflict of interest because his employer, the Pima County Legal 15 Defender, had represented the victim, Debra Dietz.

16 Mr. Wood’s development of his case was further prevented. He repeatedly 17 requested funding from this Court for a full neurological and neuropsychological 18 work-up. (ECF No. 13 at 2.) (“Petitioner seeks funding for a neuro-psychologist 19 to demonstrate that the Petitioner suffers from organic brain damage”); (ECF No.
20 24 at 86 n.1.) (“Petitioner’s request for a complete battery of neurological tests 21 had not yet been granted . . . Petitioner hereby renews his request . . .”), (ECF 22 No. 69 at 38-39.) (“Petitioner will require the appointment of a mitigation 23 specialist and neuropsychologist, previously requested by Petitioner in these 24 proceedings . . .”). These requests were never granted. (ECF No. 79 at 71-72.) 25 (“The record, which contains, among other items, all of the reports prepared by 26 the mental health experts who had evaluated Petitioner is sufficient to resolve this 27 claim [of trial counsel’s ineffectiveness].”) 28

1 Mr. Wood, while represented by a CJA panel attorney and still seeking the 2 same resources, filed a Martinez remand motion in the Ninth Circuit so he could
3 develop his claims. (9th Cir. ECF No. 74 at 12-13.) (“Mr. Wood now is entitled 4 to discovery and investigation as to the ineffective assistance of trial and 5 sentencing claims . . .”). That motion, too, was never granted. In stark contrast, 6 other habeas petitioners have received Martinez remands in several capital cases.
7 Martinez v. Ryan, No. 08-99009, Order dated July 7, 2014, Walden v. Ryan, No.
8 08-99012, Order dated July 7, 2014 (9th Cir.); Dickens v. Ryan, 740 F.3d 1302 9 (9th Cir. 2014); Detrich v. Ryan, 740 F.3d 1237 (9th Cir. 2013); Lopez v. Ryan, 10 No. 09-99028, Order dated April 26, 2012 (9th Cir.); Runnigeagle v. Ryan, No.
11 07-99026, Order dated July 18, 2012 (9th Cir.). These petitioners’ counsel had or 12 obtained the resources to retain experts and conduct mitigation investigations in 13 support of the remand request. Despite the requests, Mr. Wood’s CJA attorney 14 did not get the resources.

15 In brief, this case presents extraordinary circumstances permitting 16 reopening of the judgment. First is the change of law while this case was pending 17 on appeal in the Ninth Circuit, specifically, Martinez. Second, when compared to 18 other capital defendants whose counsel did have funding to conduct investigation 19 and develop a record, Mr. Wood was denied his equal protection and due process 20 rights because he did not have the resources available to him to bring a successful 21 Martinez remand motion and show prejudice. See Douglas v. California, 372 22 U.S. 353 (1963) (indigent defendant entitled to counsel on first appeal); Griffin v.
23 Illinois, 351 U.S. 12 (1955) (indigent defendant entitled to transcript of 24 proceedings or its equivalent on appeal).

25 I. STATEMENT OF FACTS

26 Mr. Wood was convicted and sentenced to death for the homicide of his ex-27 girlfriend, Debra Dietz, and her father, Eugene Deitz. The homicide victims were 28

1 the only persons shot and they were shot at close range. Even Donald Deitz, the 2 uncle and brother of the victims, who struggled with Mr. Wood over Mr. Wood's 3 gun, was not hurt. Mr. Wood was also convicted of aggravated assault for lifting 4 a weapon off the ground when approached by police officers who then shot and 5 wounded him.

6 A. The Trial Court Prevented Trial Counsel From Obtaining 7 Important Mitigating Evidence and Counsel's Scant Mitigation 8 Presentation.

9 Before trial, trial counsel requested and obtained Rule 11 (competency) 10 evaluations for Mr. Wood. One of the examining experts was clinical 11 psychologist Catherine L. Boyer, Ph.D. In her report, she recommended an in-12 depth neuropsychological and neurological assessment:

13 Regarding concerns about organic impairment, with 14 his head injuries and extensive alcohol and drug abuse, it 15 would not be surprising for Mr. Wood to have some 16 organic impairment. However, he does not appear to have 17 any serious cognitive deficiencies and any impairment is 18 likely to be mild. There is no evidence of cognitive 19 impairment to a degree which would preclude him from 20 being aware of and understanding his own behavior.
21 There is a possibility that his head injury in 1981 affected 22 his emotional functioning – the personality change he 23 referred to. This is not an uncommon phenomenon with 24 head injuries. It is possible that a past head injury may 25 have increased his emotional lability. He has stated that, 26 even though he gets upset, as long as he is not intoxicated, 27 he is able to cope with this emotional arousal. Thus, even 28 if a head injury led to increased lability, it appears likely that the alcohol intoxication is what impairs his self-control, rather than the head injury. The best way to document the possible emotional effects of such a head injury would be to interview those who have known him both prior and subsequent to that injury and to obtain their observations about his behavior. More in-depth neuropsychological and neurological assessment could be conducted, although even if they showed some deficiencies, it is unlikely that they would be sufficient to preclude his being aware of his own behavior. They might provide some information which could be mitigating, however.

1 (PCR ROA 57, Exh. 1.)¹ No “in-depth neuropsychological and neurological 2 assessment” was done before trial.

3 At trial, counsel presented two mental health experts. During the guilt 4 phase, he presented Dr. James Allender at trial to testify to the defense that the 5 Mr. Wood was impulsive. He then presented at sentencing Dr. Michael Breslow, 6 a psychiatrist, who testified mainly that Mr. Wood suffers from alcohol and 7 stimulant dependency.

8 Dr. Allender was presented as a neuropsychologist but had only conducted 9 an evaluation relevant to the guilt phase. In his affidavit provided to post-10 conviction counsel, he stated that counsel limited his examination to the issues of 11 Mr. Wood’s loss of memory and impulsivity related to the diminished capacity 12 defense.

13 Lamar Couser [trial counsel] did not discuss with me the 14 legal standard for diminished capacity defenses under 15 State v. Christiansen prior to my evaluation. Instead, he 16 requested that I examine the Defendant for purposes of determining if the memory was organically based or if impulsivity was a problem.

17 (PCR ROA 48, 4/22/96 Affidavit of James Allender, Ph.D.) The limited scope of 18 the question posed to Dr. Allender explains the limited scope of his evaluation in 19 which he only gave Mr. Wood the following tests: Wechsler Adult Intelligence 20 Scale-Revised, i.e., an I.Q. test; Wechsler Memory Scale-Revised and Rorshach 21 Test. (PCR ROA 1089, Exh. 34.) A much more detailed and varied 22 neuropsychological battery was available at the time. (ECF No. 25, Exh. 7, 23 Affidavit of Marc S. Walter, Ph.D. (“Dr. Allender did not purport to conduct an 24 in-depth neurological screening [A]n in-depth neurological screening would 25 include eleven additional tests.”).)

26
27

¹ “PCR ROA” refers to the record in the Pima County Superior Court, Case No.
28 CR-28449, prepared for Mr. Wood’s appeal to the Arizona Supreme Court following the denial of his first state post-conviction petition.

1 At trial, Dr. Allender testified that Petitioner was someone with impulsive 2 tendencies. (R.T. 2/22/91, 153.) Dr. Allender could not give a source of Mr.
3 Wood's memory loss concerning the homicides. Id. at 153-54.

4 Despite Dr. Allender's testimony, Mr. Wood was convicted on February 25, 5 1991 of first degree homicide and the sentencing by the trial court was set for 6 later. Trial counsel was, however, too busy after the initial phase of the trial to 7 devote significant time to Mr. Wood's case investigating and developing 8 mitigation. On May 8, 1991, trial counsel moved to continue the sentencing 9 hearing scheduled for May 28, 1991. In the motion, he stated, he "had many 10 heavy cases and trials in recent weeks which have made it impossible to devote 11 enough time to this matter. (ROA 130 at 1.) He added that he needed to have Mr.
12 Wood examined by a psychiatrist and that he was bringing the motion for more 13 time because he "ha[d] an awesome responsibility in trying to save Defendant's 14 life." Id. at 2.

15 Subsequently, Dr. Michael Breslow examined Mr. Wood on July 3, 1991 16 and July 10, 1991. (R.T. 7/12/91, 8.) The examination occurred less than two 17 weeks before Dr. Breslow testified. Id. at 8. His substantive testimony, which 18 does not include his testimony about his qualifications, spanned only 15 pages.
19 Id. at 8-23. He was the only witness trial counsel presented in the sentencing 20 hearing. Dr. Breslow did not perform any neuropsychological testing. In that 21 connection, he did provide trial counsel with a letter recommending a thorough 22 neurologic exam. Dr. Breslow wrote:

23 [Mr. Wood's] history does support the possibility of 24 organic brain disease caused by his three motorcycle
25 accidents. Such injuries often cause subtle neurologic 26 changes which result in impaired emotional and 27 behavioral control. I would request a thorough neurologic
28 exam and brain mapping (computerized electroencephalogram analysis). These evaluations could confirm or exclude such neurologic impairment as a contributor to your client's impulsiveness and violence.

1 (See letter dated 6/16/91, PCR ROA 1808.) On June 24, 1991, trial counsel filed 2 a motion with the trial court seeking the brain mapping. The motion was never 3 granted.

4 In addition to Dr. Breslow's brief testimony, counsel's sentencing 5 presentation included a transcript of an interview with Mr. Wood's father, Joseph 6 Wood, Jr., a transcript of an interview with a friend of Mr. Wood's, and a stack of 7 Veteran's Administration and Air Force records that counsel neither discussed nor 8 analyzed. Counsel gave a four page closing argument, only one page of which 9 was devoted to mitigation. (R.T. 7/12/91, 24-28.)

10 In the presentence report in this capital case, the presentence investigator 11 questioned whether Mr. Wood had actually received an honorable discharge. The 12 investigator discussed Mr. Wood's military service noting that Mr. Wood served 13 in Korea and added:

14 In early 1983, the defendant returned to the states after 15 completion of his overseas assignment, but was not 16 allowed to reenlist based on his conduct while in the 17 service, and was discharged. Military records have not been received to verify the type [of] discharge although the defendant states it was honorable.

18 (PCR ROA 57, Exh. 7.) However, counsel had in his possession and presented to 19 the court a number of Air Force records including documentation of Mr. Wood's 20 honorable discharge. (PCR ROA 576.) Counsel never mentioned this record to 21 the court and the court did not find in mitigation that Mr. Wood was honorably 22 discharged.

23 The trial court made the following findings regarding aggravation and 24 mitigation. For the former, it found that Mr. Wood created a grave risk of danger 25 to other persons in addition to the victims and that he had been convicted of one 26 or more homicides. As for mitigation, it found the lack of prior felonies, the 27 mitigation found in the presentence report, and the testimony of the psychiatrist.
28

1 (The mitigation found in the presentence report included the lack of prior felonies 2 and that the defendant was under unusual and substantial duress, although not 3 such as to constitute a defense to prosecution. (PCR ROA 57, Exh. 7.) The court 4 found that the mitigating circumstances did not outweigh the aggravating 5 circumstances. (R.T. 7/12/91, 32.)

6 In his habeas petition filed with this Court, Mr. Wood argued that the trial 7 court erred and violated his Eighth and Fourteenth Amendment rights because it 8 prevented the presentation of mitigating evidence. (ECF No. 24 at 81-88.)
9 Petitioner asserted that he made a sufficient proffer to obtain the neuro-mapping 10 in state court and presented the Affidavit of Marc Walter, Ph.D., an exhibit in the 11 habeas petition, in further support of the request. Among other things, Dr. Walter 12 informed this Court that:

13 10. That Petitioner's gradual but marked change in 14 personality and behavior subsequent to his most severe head injury corroborates that the brain damage exists;

15 11. That Petitioner's impulsive behavior as 16 described by his parents and as demonstrated by several 17 examples of his behavior also corroborates that the brain damage exists;

18 12. That organic brain damage can have a 19 significant impact on an individual's impulse control and ability to deliberate their actions;

20 . . .

21 19. That I feel very confident that comprehensive 22 neuropsychological testing could provide irrefutable evidence that Mr. Wood suffers from organic brain 23 impairment;

24 20. That Dr. Allender did not purport to conduct an in-depth neurological screening and the two tests he did 25 conduct (the WAIS-R and the Wechsler Memory Scale-Revised) suggested some neurological impairment

26 21. That, in my view, an in-depth neurological 27 exam would include eleven additional tests;

28 22. That I would strongly recommend that Mr.

1 Wood undergo a quantitative EEG or brain electrical 2 activity mapping test to identify abnormal electrical patterns in his brain function;

3 23. That such tests provide reliable diagnostic 4 information about whether a subject possesses organic brain damage;

5 (ECF No. 25, Exh. 7.)

6 This Court concluded that this claim was procedurally barred and no
7 additional testing was permitted. (ECF No. 63 at 32.)

8 B. Trial Counsel’s failure to impeach Officer Anita Sueme.

9 At trial, the State presented testimony from officers who were at the scene 10 when Mr. Wood shot the victims and when he was shot by the officers. Officer 11 Anita Sueme testified she recovered the gun and she never opened the cylinder of 12 the gun. (R.T. 2/21/91, 13.) Relying on this testimony, the State presented 13 evidence that the cylinder displayed an odd sequence of two live rounds between 14 three spent cartridges. (R.T. 2/22/91, 13-14; R.T. 2/21/91, 58.) (testimony of 15 homicide detective about sequence in which bullets were found). It presented 16 further testimony that the placement of the cartridges could be explained by the 17 cocking and uncocking of the weapon. Id. at 15. The State then argued that this 18 showed that Mr. Wood’s actions were premeditated. “Two live rounds, between 19 three spent charges. How does that happen? You pull the hammer back, and you 20 let the hammer down. You pull the hammer back when Jimmy Dietz is running 21 through interior [sic] and you let the hammer down, you pull the hammer back 22 when you are getting ready to blow away Jimmy Dietz again, and you let the 23 hammer down.” (R.T. 2/25/91, 30-31.)

24 This testimony was important to the Arizona Supreme Court’s affirmance 25 of the death sentence and finding of the grave risk aggravator. This aggravator 26 stated: “In the commission of the offense the defendant knowingly created a 27 grave risk of death to another person or persons in addition to the victim of the 28

1 offense.” Ariz. Rev. Stat. § 13-703(F)(3) (1989) The Court noted that “there is 2 merit to Defendant’s arguments,” that the facts of the case do not bring the case 3 within the “grave-risk-to-another” aggravator, but “under the unusual 4 circumstances of the case,” the court rejected Mr. Wood’s argument. State v.
5 Wood, 881 P.2d 1158, 1174 (Ariz. 1994). The Court initially recognized “the 6 general rule . . . that the mere presence of bystanders . . . does not bring a 7 murderous act within A.R.S. sec. 13-703(F)(3).” Id. The Court stated, however, 8 that an important factor was the location of the bullets found in the gun cylinder:

10 Moreover, a firearms expert testified that the position of 11 the fired and unfired cartridges in the murder weapon
12 showed that Defendant cocked and uncocked the gun 13 twice between shooting Eugene and Debra. Thus, there is 14 evidence Defendant knowingly prepared the gun to fire
15 both when he assumed a shooting stance toward one 16 employee and when he grappled with another. Id. at 17 1174-75.

18
19 Telling a vastly different story than her trial testimony, when interviewed 20 for a book by author Stuart Gellman, Officer Sueme, told Mr. Gellman about the 21 event as follows:

23 “Put your arms behind your back” she yells. He does, and 24 Espinoza kicks the gun toward her. Anita picks it up,
25 starts to remove the remaining bullets, and then thinks,
26 “Wait a second, somebody might be dead here, and I’m 27 going to have to mark where the bullets are in the 28 chamber.”

(ECF No. 25, Exh. 2.) (emphasis supplied.) Trial counsel had this statement in his possession. He attached it to a motion to change venue but inexplicably failed to use it to challenge Officer Sueme’s testimony. (Exhibit to Supplement to Motion for Change of Trial Site, PCR ROA at 1631.)

At trial, the State’s expert conceded that that any simple rotation of the cylinder could have affected his conclusion about whether Mr. Wood cocked and re-cocked the revolver. (R.T. 2/22/91, 13-15.) (“Q. Okay. How do you rotate the

1 cylinder? A. Well, . . . [a]nother way you could do it is to open the cylinder up 2 and rotate it manually and close it up again.”.)

3 In his Amended Habeas Petition, Mr. Wood claimed that counsel was 4 ineffective for failing to cross-examine Officer Sueme with her statement to Mr.
5 Gellman, as this would have damaged the State’s case at trial and in sentencing.
6 (Habeas Claim X. C. 2., ECF No. 24 at 128-36.)

7 This Court held that this claim was procedurally barred because it was not 8 presented to the state court. (ECF No. 63 at 36.) The Ninth Circuit Court of 9 Appeals also held it was procedurally defaulted. Wood v. Ryan, 693 F.3d 1104, 10 1119 (9th Cir. 2012) (“We affirm the district court’s dismissal of the claim 11 because it was not fairly presented to the state courts.”).

12 C. Appellate Counsel’s Conflict of Interest.

13 Because of a conflict of interest, on March 25, 1992, the Arizona Supreme 14 Court granted direct appeal counsel’s motion to withdraw from representing 15 Petitioner. (ECF No. 25, Exh. 15.) Counsel, Barry Baker Sipe, was joining the 16 Pima County Legal Defender’s Office which had represented one of the victims, 17 Debra Dietz. Despite the conflict and the court order directing him to withdraw, 18 Mr. Baker Sipe remained as counsel. Apparently, Mr. Baker Sipe stayed with the 19 case because two days earlier, on March 23, 1992, the trial court directed the 20 Legal Defender to deliver Ms. Dietz’s file to the court for an in camera inspection 21 and the court stated it would produce all exculpatory or mitigating material 22 (presumably to appellate counsel) or seal the file.

23 As a result, Mr. Baker Sipe filed Mr. Wood’s direct appeal brief. In that 24 brief, Mr. Baker Sipe kept away from a theme that trial counsel sought to develop, 25 that, after a break-up, Mr. Wood and Ms. Dietz had been involved in a covert 26 relationship which she was hiding from her parents. Instead, he argued that Mr.
27 Wood was insane, a proposition which had no basis in testimony in the record. If 28

1 counsel had pursued the covert relationship, he would have given the Arizona
2 Supreme Court a reason not to credit hearsay declarations about Ms. Dietz's 3 statements about Mr. Wood which it used to bolster the case for premeditation.

4 Counsel performed abysmally on appeal in other ways. The Arizona 5 Supreme Court spoke disparagingly about his written advocacy.

6 Defense counsel reproduced 20 excerpts of trial testimony 7 amounting to 14 pages in his opening brief and then made 8 a generic claim that all the testimony was improperly 9 admitted on hearsay, relevance, opinion testimony, or 10 Rule 404 grounds. To say the least, this is an unhelpful 11 appellate practice. On appeal, counsel must clearly 12 identify the objectionable portions of testimony and the 13 specific basis for each claimed error. See Ariz. R. Crim.
14 P. 31.13(c)(1)(iv). Because this is a capital case and we 15 must search for fundamental error, we will examine the 16 evidentiary claims before considering the question of any 17 waiver by appellate counsel.

18 State v. Wood, 881 P.2d at 1166 n.3. Basically, Mr. Wood received the same 19 review as if his counsel had not briefed the claims at all.

20 Furthermore, in his appellate brief, Mr. Baker Sipe liberally used the 21 phrase, "incorporated by reference." For example, the brief tells the Court that to 22 fully understand Argument 16, it must also read arguments 14, 11, 10, 9, 8, 4, and 23 2. (Argument 4 is not incorporated by Argument 16 expressly, but is incorporated 24 in Argument 10 which Argument 16 refers to.)

25 The claim that appellate counsel was conflicted was raised as Claim XI in 26 the habeas petition. This Court held that the claim was defaulted. (ECF No. 63 at 27 40-41.) The Ninth Circuit reached the same conclusion. Wood v. Ryan, 693 F.3d 28 at 1121 ("Wood did not raise this particular ineffective assistance claim on direct appeal or in his PCR proceedings, so the district court dismissed it as unexhausted and procedurally defaulted.").

26 D. The Inadequate Mitigation Investigation by Trial Counsel.

27 Trial counsel conducted almost no mitigation investigation. At the 28 sentencing hearing, he presented the father and a friend of Mr Wood's via 1 interview transcript only. These were the only lay witnesses.

2 1. Many other witnesses and records were available to much 3 more fully describe Petitioner's life and background.

4 From available witnesses and records, counsel could have put together a 5 more compelling social history. Not simply Mr. Wood, but many of Mr. Wood's 6 relatives struggled with addiction, mental illness and domestic violence. Mr.
7 Wood's maternal grandfather, Antonio Ramirez, was an alcoholic. He verbally 8 abused Mr. Wood's mother, Mary Wood, and her siblings. He physically abused 9 his wife, Liberada. Mary Wood's youngest brother, Joe, developed a substance 10 abuse problem, spent most of his life in prison and died of a heroin overdose. Her 11 brother, Porfilio, committed suicide by hanging. Her brother, Frank, suffered 12 from severe depression and abused drugs and alcohol. Her sister, Pauline, was an 13 alcoholic who served eight years in prison for killing her boyfriend. Her sister 14 Petra's daughter suffers from mental illness. Another sister, Beatrice, has two 15 sons with substance abuse problems.

16 Mr. Wood's paternal grandfather, Joseph Wood, Sr., was also an alcoholic 17 who drank heavily. Wood, Sr. beat and cursed his wife, Hester. Mr. Wood's 18 paternal aunt, Carolyn, suffered from post-partum depression and attempted 19 suicide by overdosing on pills. Another paternal aunt, Anna Sue, was hospitalized 20 after overdosing on prescription antidepressants. Her son, Tommy, drank heavily 21 and experienced large mood swings.

22 While trial counsel obtained testimony from Mr. Wood's mother during the 23 guilt phase, he did not present her testimony in the sentencing phase. (Compare 24 Mary Wood Aff. (ECF No. 25, Exh. 8.) with R.T. 2/22/91, 54-68 (guilt phase 25 testimony).) Also, trial counsel did not interview Mr. Wood's aunts and uncles 26 who could have provided information about his many family members' troubled 27 mental health and addiction problems.

28

1 2. Mr. Wood’s father suffered from PTSD from his days of 2 serving in the Vietnam War.

3 Joseph Jr. served in the Air Force in Vietnam during the Vietnam War 4 returning in 1970. Joseph Jr. served at Cam Ranh Bay Airbase in Vietnam which 5 was subject to weekly rocket attacks from opposing forces. He left with shrapnel 6 in his left arm, and had flashbacks and nightmares. He exhibited symptoms of 7 hyperarousal. Joseph Jr. was a commended leader in the Air Force. Mr. Wood’s 8 father did not talk with him about the war.

9 3. Expert Reports

10 In connection with mitigating evidence that was available to Mr. Wood’s 11 counsel at the time of trial, Mr. Wood will supplement this Motion upon receipt of 12 reports from Clinical Psychologist and Certified Addiction Specialist Robert L.
13 Smith, Ph.D. and from Dr. Kenneth Benedict, a neuropsychologist. Dr. Smith 14 evaluated Mr. Wood on June 17, 2014 and Dr. Benedict evaluated him on June 25 15 and 26, 2014.

16 This Court held that the federal habeas claim that trial counsel had failed to 17 adequately prepare and present evidence and obtain an in-depth neurological 18 evaluation, Claim 10.C.3.a. was not procedurally barred. (ECF No. 63 at 37.) It 19 denied the claim, (ECF No. 79 at 46-62.), but it also denied Mr. Wood additional 20 funds for a mitigation expert and a neuropsychologist. (ECF No. 79 at 71-72.)

21 II. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

22 Mr. Wood was convicted by jury on February 25, 1991. At the conclusion 23 of a sentencing hearing that lasted less than one day, the trial judge sentenced Mr.
24 Wood to death on July 12, 1991, on each of the two first degree murder charges 25 and ordered him to serve an aggravated term of 15 years in prison on each of two 26 aggravated assault counts.

27 Mr. Wood’s convictions and sentences were affirmed by the Arizona 28

1 Supreme Court on October 11, 1994. State v. Wood, 180 Ariz. 53, 881 P.2d 1158
2 (1994). That court denied rehearing and the United States Supreme Court 3 subsequently denied Mr. Wood's petition for writ of certiorari. Wood v. Arizona, 4 515 U.S. 1147 (1995).

5 Mr. Wood's first petition for post-conviction relief, filed in the Pima 6 County Superior Court, was denied by Judge Howard Hantman on June 6, 1997 7 and a petition for review was denied by the Arizona Supreme Court on November 8 12, 1997. Mr. Wood subsequently initiated federal habeas corpus proceedings.
9 Wood v. Schriro, No. CV-98-053-TUC-JMR (D. Ariz.). While those proceedings 10 were ongoing, Mr. Wood filed a second petition for post-conviction relief in the 11 Pima County Superior Court on August 6, 2002. Judge Hantman dismissed that 12 petition on November 7, 2002, and the Arizona Supreme Court denied review.
13 State v. Wood, CR-03-0311-PC (Ariz. Sup. Ct. May 26, 2004).

14 The United States District Court for the District of Arizona denied relief on 15 October 24, 2007. Mr. Wood appealed that decision to the Ninth Circuit Court of 16 Appeals, which affirmed the district court on September 10, 2012. Wood v. Ryan, 17 693 F.3d 1104 (9th Cir. 2012). The panel denied the petitions for rehearing and 18 rehearing en banc. Wood v. Ryan, No 08-99003 Order (9th Cir. Jan. 10, 2013).
19 The United States Supreme Court again denied cert. Wood v. Ryan, No. 13-5150 20 (U.S. Oct. 7, 2013).

21 On May 6, 2014, Mr. Wood filed his third petition for post-conviction relief 22 in the Pima County Superior Court, Judge D. Douglas Metcalf presiding. State v.
23 Wood, No. CR-28449. In that Petition, Mr. Wood asserted that there was a 24 significant change of law regarding Arizona's requirement that mitigation have a 25 causal nexus to the crimes. Mr. Wood also alleged that his direct appeal attorney 26 labored under a conflict of interest. That petition was denied on July 9, 2014. Mr.
27 Wood has filed a petition for review from the superior court's decision which 28

1 petition has been denied today.

2 III. PRIOR COUNSEL

3 At trial, Mr. Wood was represented by R. Lamar Couser, Esq. Mr. Couser 4 has been found ineffective in other cases. E.g., Clabourne v. Lewis, 64 F.3d 1373, 5 1387 (9th Cir. 1995); Wallace v. Stewart, 184 F.3d 1112 (9th Cir. 1999).

6 On direct appeal, Mr. Wood was represented by Barry J. Baker Sipe, whom 7 the Arizona Supreme Court recognized to be conflicted because he worked for the 8 same public defense office that represented the victim, Debbie Dietz, and whose 9 advocacy that Court criticized.

10 On post-conviction, Mr. Wood was represented by Harriette Levitt, the 11 post-conviction attorney whose conduct led to Martinez v. Ryan, 132 S. Ct. 1309 12 (2012), which recognized that prisoners have an equitable interest in effective 13 post-conviction counsel.

14 IV. ARGUMENT

15 Mr. Wood brings this Rule 60(b) motion because of defects in the integrity 16 of his federal habeas proceedings. Gonzalez v. Crosby, 545 U.S. 524, 532 (2005) 17 (a proper Rule 60(b) motion “attacks, not the substance of the federal court’s 18 resolution of a claim on the merits, but some defect in the integrity of the federal 19 habeas proceedings”). As stated above, several substantial claims were defaulted.
20 Furthermore, Mr. Wood’s claim that counsel’s performed ineffectively at 21 sentencing was compromised because the Court did not provide him with the 22 resources to investigate.

23 A. Mr. Wood’s Motion is a 60(b) Motion and not a Successive 24 Habeas Petition.

25 A 60(b) motion is not a successive petition if it does not attack a ruling on 26 the merits. Gonzalez v. Crosby, 545 U.S. 524, 521 (2005); Jones v. Ryan, 733 27 F.3d 825, 834 (9th Cir. 2013). The Ninth Circuit has held that there is no bright 28

1 line rule for determining what is a 60(b) motion and what is a successive habeas 2 petition subject to the strictures of 28 U.S.C. sec. 2244(b). Id.

3 Courts frequently hold that a proper 60(b) motion attacks a ruling which 4 was not on the merits. Gonzalez, 545 U.S. at 533 (challenge of statute of 5 limitations ruling is proper 60(b) motion); Thompson v. Bell, 580 F.3d 423, 443 6 (6th Cir. 2009) (Rule 60(b) motion could properly challenge district court's 7 decision that claims were dismissed for failing to seek discretionary review); Ruiz 8 v. Quarterman, 504 F.3d 523, 526 (5th Cir. 2007) (Rule 60(b) motion properly 9 brought to challenge district court's ruling that claim was procedurally defaulted 10 because state habeas lawyer only filed boilerplate petition); Barnett v. Roper, 941 11 F. Supp. 2d 1099, 1109 (E.D. Mo. 2013) (Rule 60(b) motion properly challenged 12 district court ruling that claims were procedurally barred due to default during 13 post-conviction).

14 In a capital case, like this one, the Ninth Circuit presumes that a motion 15 brought under Rule 60(b) is a permissible 60(b) motion. Jones, 733 F.3d at 838 16 ("Assuming for the sake of argument that Jones's motion is permissible under 17 Rule 60(b) as a challenge to a defect in the integrity of his prior habeas corpus 18 proceedings under Gonzalez, an assumption we are willing to make to expedite 19 and promote a full review in this death penalty context, we address whether Jones 20 has satisfied the standards for relief from judgment under that Rule.").

21 Here, Mr. Wood seeks relief from judgment finding three of the claims 22 raised in the habeas petition defaulted: the trial court's failure to provide testing 23 for neurological impairment; trial counsel's failure to utilize important 24 impeachment against a key State witness; and appellate counsel's conflict of 25 interest. These were not merits rulings and are proper basis for a 60(b) motion.

26 Furthermore, this Court denied Mr. Wood funding for a mitigation expert 27 and for neurological/neuropsychological evaluations which funding would have 28

1 assisted Mr. Wood in developing his claim that counsel was ineffective at 2 sentencing. This, too, is akin to a default ruling because the Court made its 3 decision based on the state court record which Mr. Wood could not supplement 4 with additional investigation and evaluations.

5 In the words of Gonzalez, the denial of the investigatory resources 6 represented a breakdown in the integrity of the system. Mr. Wood repeatedly 7 requested from this Court a full neurological and neuropsychological work-up.
8 (ECF No. 13 at 2.) (“Petitioner seeks funding for a neuro-psychologist to 9 demonstrate that the Petitioner suffers from organic brain damage”); (ECF No. 24 10 at 86 n.1.) (“Petitioner’s request for a complete battery of neurological tests had 11 not yet been granted . . . Petitioner hereby renews his request . . .”); (ECF No. 69 12 at 38-39.) (“Petitioner will require the appointment of a mitigation specialist and 13 neuropsychologist, previously requested by Petitioner in these proceedings . . .”).
14 The Court never granted the requests. (ECF No. 79 at 71-72.) (“The record, 15 which contains, among other items, all of the reports prepared by the mental 16 health experts who had evaluated Petitioner is sufficient to resolve this claim [of 17 trial counsel’s ineffectiveness].”)

18 Mr. Wood, while represented by a CJA panel attorney and still seeking the 19 same resources, filed a Martinez remand motion in the Ninth Circuit so he could 20 develop his claims. (9th Cir. ECF No. 74 at 12-13.) (“Mr. Wood now is entitled 21 to discovery and investigation as to the ineffective assistance of trial and 22 sentencing claims . . .”). Likewise, that motion was never granted. In stark 23 contrast, clients whose counsel had funding from this Court or whose counsel 24 were the Federal Defender’s Office have received Martinez remands from the 25 Ninth Circuit in a number of capital cases. Martinez v. Ryan, No. 08-99009, 26 Order dated July 7, 2014 (9th Cir.), Walden v. Ryan, No. 08-99012, Order dated 27 July 7, 2014 (9th Cir.); Dickens v. Ryan, 740 F.3d 1302 (9th Cir. 2014); Detrich v.
28

1 Ryan, 740 F.3d 1237 (9th Cir. 2013); Lopez v. Ryan, No. 09-99028, Order dated 2 April 26, 2012; Runnigeagle v. Ryan, No. 07-99026, Order dated July 18, 2012.
3 Mr. Wood’s CJA attorney does not have resources to investigate or retain experts 4 without funding from the district court.

5 Without resources, Mr. Wood is like the indigent defendants in Griffin v.
6 Illinois, 351 U.S. 12 (1955), and Douglas v. California, 372 U.S. 353, 355 (1963), 7 who were deprived of the resources to conduct their appeals. Those defendants 8 lacked trial transcripts and counsel. Mr. Wood needed and didn’t have resources 9 to show prejudice when counsel performed deficiently. By ready analogy, the 10 words of Douglas v. California, apply here: “where the merits of the one and only 11 appeal an indigent has of right are decided without benefit of counsel, we think an 12 unconstitutional line has been drawn between rich and poor.” 372 U.S. at 355.
13 Similarly, and unfortunately for Mr. Wood, in his one and only habeas as “of 14 right,” a “line was drawn” between counsel with resources and counsel like his, 15 who up until now, did not have resources for investigation and experts.

16 The Supreme Court’s explanation of appellants’ denial of due process and 17 equal protection rights in those cases equally explains Mr. Wood’s predicament.
18 “In cases like Griffin and Douglas, due process concerns were involved because 19 the States involved had set up a system of appeals as of right but had refused to 20 offer each defendant a fair opportunity to obtain an adjudication on the merits of 21 his appeal. Equal protection concerns were involved because the State treated a 22 class of defendants – indigent ones – differently for purposes of offering them a 23 meaningful appeal. Both of these concerns were implicated in the Griffin and 24 Douglas cases and both Clauses supported the decisions reached by this Court.”
25 Evitts v. Lucey, 469 U.S. 387, 405 (1985). Mr. Wood, here, was deprived of “a 26 fair opportunity” to develop his habeas claims.

27 In this case, the Court denied funding because it believed that the state court 28

1 record was “sufficient.” However, it never addressed the necessity of funding for 2 defaulted claims where the record was not sufficient, for example, the claim that 3 Mr. Wood was denied a neurologic mapping study for use at sentencing.
4 Furthermore, the Court did consider whether it should provide resources to habeas 5 counsel so that Mr. Wood could demonstrate that post-conviction counsel was 6 ineffective with regard to claims that were exhausted. Finally, the Court relied on 7 “reports prepared by the mental health experts who had evaluated Petitioner.”
8 However, the majority of those experts evaluated him to determine competency 9 under Rule 11. That is very different from an evaluation for mitigation purposes.
10 Summerlin v. Schriro, 427 F.3d 623, 642 (9th Cir. 2005) (penalty phase defense 11 evaluation is different from competency evaluation).

12 B. The Claims are Substantial Under *Martinez

13 Pursuant to Martinez v. Ryan, 132 S. Ct. 1309 (2012), this Court may hold 14 that there is cause for a default based upon “[i]nadequate assistance of counsel at 15 initial-review collateral proceedings.” Id. at 1315. In Trevino v. Thaler, 133 S.
16 Ct. 1911 (2013), the Supreme Court explained the rationale of the Martinez 17 decision. “[F]ailure to consider a lawyer’s ‘ineffectiveness’ during an initial-18 review collateral proceeding as a potential ‘cause’ for excusing a procedural 19 default will deprive the defendant of any opportunity at all for review of an 20 ineffective-assistance-of-trial-counsel claim.” Id. at 1921. For that reason, the 21 Supreme Court ruled that “[t]o overcome the default, a prisoner must also 22 demonstrate that the underlying . . . claim is a substantial one, which is to say that 23 the prisoner must demonstrate that the claim has some merit.” Martinez, 132 S.
24 Ct. at 1318. The claims Petitioner seeks to pursue are all substantial, i.e., they 25 have some merit.

26 1. The Failure to Permit Neuromapping, Habeas Claim VI.

27 The trial court denied Mr. Wood’s request for evidence of neurological 28

1 impairment, neuromapping. Two doctors, Dr. Boyer and Dr. Breslow 2 recommended that Mr. Wood have a neurological evaluation. Dr. Allender only 3 performed a limited neuropsychological examination for a limited purpose, the 4 guilt phase.

5 The trial court's denial of the request for further neurological evaluation, 6 i.e., neuromapping, deprived Mr. Wood of substantial rights. Dr. Breslow 7 supported the request for neuromapping. He told trial counsel and the trial court:

8 [Mr. Wood's] history does support the possibility of 9 organic brain disease caused by his three motorcycle
10 accidents. Such injuries often cause subtle neurologic
11 changes which result in impaired emotional and 12 behavioral control. I would request a thorough neurologic
13 exam and brain mapping (computerized
14 electroencephalogram analysis). These evaluations could 15 confirm or exclude such neurologic impairment as a
16 contributor to your client's impulsiveness and violence.

17 (See letter dated 6/16/19, attached to PCR ROA 1808.) Many courts have found 18 evidence of organic brain damage to be mitigating. Jefferson v. Upton, 130 S. Ct.
19 2217, 2218 (2010) (finding "permanent brain damage" that "causes abnormal 20 behavior," resulting from head injury); Sears v. Upton, 130 S. Ct. 3259, 3261
21 (2010) ("frontal lobe brain damage"); Porter v. McCallum, 130 S. Ct. 447, 454 22 (2009) (per curiam); Rompilla v. Beard, 545 U.S. 374, 392 (2005); California v.
23 Brown, 479 U.S. 538, 545 (1987) (O'Connor, J., concurring) ("evidence about the 24 defendant's background and character is relevant because of the belief, long held 25 by this society, that defendants who commit criminal acts that are attributable to a 26 disadvantaged background, or to emotional and mental problems, may be less 27 culpable than defendants who have no such excuse."); see also Abdul-Kabir v.
28 Quarterman, 550 U.S. 233, 256 (2007) (even "possible neurological damage" is mitigating).

Here, Mr. Wood was deprived of evidence that demonstrated the mitigating effect of brain damage that substantially impacted his behavior. However, trial

1 counsel did not argue and neither the trial court nor the Arizona Supreme Court 2 found that Mr. Wood had brain damage. As cited, legal precedent holds that brain 3 damage is significant mitigation and the claim is a substantial one.

4 The trial court's denial of the motion denied Mr. Wood important 5 constitutional rights. The rights to due process, to present a defense, and against 6 cruel and unusual punishment demand that a capital defendant be given broad 7 latitude to present mitigating evidence relevant to his character, record, and 8 background, and that a capital sentencing jury be allowed to give full 9 consideration and effect to such mitigating evidence. See Williams v. Taylor, 529 10 U.S. 362, 393 (2000); see also Penry v. Lynaugh, 492 U.S. 302, 307 (1989); 11 Penry v. Johnson, 532 U.S. 782 (2001); Eddings v. Oklahoma, 455 U.S. 104, 110-12 12 (1982); Lockett v. Ohio, 438 U.S. 586, 604-05 (1978); Skipper v. South
13 Carolina, 476 U.S. 1, 4 (1986); Hitchcock v. Dugger, 481 U.S. 393, 394 (1987); 14 Mills v. Maryland, 486 U.S. 367 (1988).

15 The court's rejection of the request for funding was unreasonable because 16 individualized sentencing necessarily entails, "the consideration of . . . evidence 17 if the sentencer could reasonably find that it warrants a sentence less than death." 18 Tennard v. Dretke, 542 U.S. 274, 285 (2004) (quoting McKoy v. North Carolina, 19 494 U.S. 433, 441 (1990)).

20 2. Counsel's Ineffectiveness for Failing to Impeach Officer 21 Sueme, Habeas Claim X.C.2.

22 Counsel could have, but failed to, undermine confidence in the grave risk 23 aggravator found by the Arizona Supreme Court. At trial, the State relied on 24 testimony and an argument that the placement of the spent and unspent bullets in 25 the cylinder of Mr. Wood's gun demonstrated that he had cocked and recocked 26 the gun. The Arizona Supreme Court relied on this testimony to find the grave 27 risk aggravator, former A.R.S. sec. 13-703(F)(3). The Court stated: 28

1 Moreover, a firearms expert testified that the position of 2 the fired and unfired cartridges in the murder weapon
3 showed that Defendant cocked and uncocked the gun
4 twice between shooting Eugene and Debra. Thus, there is evidence Defendant knowingly prepared the gun to fire
 both when he assumed a shooting stance toward one employee and when he grappled with another.

5 State v. Wood, 881 P.2d 1158, 1174-75 (Ariz. 1994). The officer who recovered
6 Petitioner's gun, Anita Sueme, testified at trial that she never opened the cylinder 7 of the gun. (R.T. 2/21/91, 13.)

8 However, she made a different statement about the events of this case to 9 author Stuart Gellman. It is reflected in his manuscript:

10 “Put your arms behind your back” she yells. He does, and 11 Espinoza kicks the gun toward her. Anita picks it up,
12 starts to remove the remaining bullets, and then thinks,
13 “Wait a second, somebody might be dead here, and I'm going to have to mark where the bullets are in the chamber.”

14 (ECF No. 25, Exh. 2.) (emphasis added). A galley draft of this book was 15 appended to a motion to change venue by trial counsel. (ECF No. 24 at 130 n. 58; 16 see also PCR ROA at 1631.) Incredibly, counsel never used it at trial.

17 If counsel had confronted Officer Sueme with her prior statement, that she 18 started to remove the bullets, a finder of fact could reasonably infer that she 19 opened the cylinder. This is important because the placement of the bullets in the 20 cylinder could be explained simply by someone opening the cylinder and rotating 21 it. (R.T. 2/22/91, 13-15.)

22 On direct appeal, the Arizona Supreme Court noted that “there is merit to 23 Defendant's arguments” objecting to the grave risk aggravator. State v. Wood, 24 881 P.2d at 1174. For instance, the victims were both shot at close range. (R.T.
25 2/20/91, 164.) (George Granillo, employee of Dietz and Sons, testifies: “Q. And 26 you say he got close to Eugene? A. About three to four feet. Q. And then you 27 say he leaned? A. He leaned forward like this and fired.”); Id. at 193 (Richard 28 Brown, family member and employee at Dietz and Sons, testified: “He come

1 running in with the gun down to his side and he run right up to Debra and then 2 grabbed her around the neck And at that time Joe had his other hand poking 3 the gun around her stomach and then he braced it up and got it up to her chest and 4 shot her once.”); Id. at 183 (Donald Dietz testified he was “eyeball to eyeball” 5 with Mr. Wood and struggled with him; Donald Dietz was not shot.) Given this 6 testimony, the Arizona Supreme Court concluded that the location of the bullets 7 within the cylinder was an important factor. The importance of this evidence is 8 demonstrated by the fact that the Court’s description of the location of the bullets 9 started with the word, moreover, meaning “more importantly.” Specifically, the 10 Court stated, “Moreover, a firearms expert testified that the position of the fired 11 and unfired cartridges in the murder weapon showed that Defendant cocked and 12 uncocked the gun twice” Id. at 1174-75.

13 However, trial counsel never cross-examined Officer Sueme with her 14 statement to Mr. Gellman that she started to unload the bullets. Had counsel done 15 so, the important fact of the location of the bullets in the cylinder would have been 16 put in significant doubt. There is a reasonable probability that the grave risk 17 aggravator would have been undermined leading to a different weighing of 18 aggravation and mitigation at sentencing.

19 Failure to impeach an important witness like Officer Sueme constitutes 20 ineffective assistance of counsel. In United States v. Tucker, 716 F.2d 576, 586 21 (9th Cir. 1983), defense counsel failed to confront prosecution witnesses with 22 their prior statements. Those statements, “which raised questions as to [the 23 witnesses’] credibility or which were more supportive of [defendant’s] theory of 24 defense than the testimony they gave at trial” should have been used at trial and 25 the failure to do so resulted in ineffective assistance of counsel. Id. at 585. See 26 Lewis v. Mayle, 391 F.3d 989, 998-99 (9th Cir. 2004) (counsel’s failure to 27 impeach witness with a prior conviction contributed to a finding of adverse effect 28

1 in an ineffective assistance of counsel claim); Berryman v. Morton, 100 F.3d 1089
2 (3d Cir. 1996) (counsel ineffective for failing to use victim's inconsistent 3 identification testimony from do-defendant's earlier trial); Moffett v. Kolb, 930 4 F.2d 1156, 1161 (7th Cir. 1991) (failure to impeach witness whose trial testimony 5 put murder weapon in possession of another individual "fell beneath an objective 6 standard of reasonableness"). Here, counsel failed to use compelling evidence, 7 the prior inconsistent statement and admission by Officer Sueme that she altered 8 the gun. Ariz. R. Evid. 801 (d)(1) (witness's prior inconsistent statement is not 9 hearsay); Ariz. R. Evid. 801(d)(2) (opposing party's or party's representative's 10 statement is not hearsay). It put the State's theory of the case into significant 11 doubt but she was never confronted with it and it was never made a part of the 12 trial record.

13 The claim was never heard on the merits and it is a substantial one.

14 3. Direct Appeal Counsel's conflict of interest. Habeas Claim 15 XI.

16 While representing the defendant on appeal, direct appeal counsel went to 17 work for the same Legal Defender office that represented the victim, Debra Dietz.
18 The Arizona Supreme Court recognized the conflict and granted counsel's motion 19 to withdraw. (ECF No. 25, Exh. 15.) Nonetheless, counsel represented Mr.
20 Wood on direct appeal.

21 Under Mickens v. Taylor, 535 U.S. 168, 173-74 (2002), Mr. Wood was 22 denied his constitutional right to counsel because the conflict adversely affected 23 appellate counsel's performance. To his client's detriment, Mr. Baker Sipe 24 avoided the defense trial theme that, after the break-up before the homicides, Mr.
25 Wood and Ms. Dietz had been involved in a covert relationship which she was 26 hiding from her parents. Instead, appellate counsel argued that Mr. Wood was 27 insane, a proposition with no evidentiary basis in the record. If counsel had 28

1 pursued the covert relationship, he would have given the Arizona Supreme Court 2 reason not to credit hearsay testimony recounting Ms. Dietz's statements about 3 Mr. Wood which it used to bolster the case for premeditation. In addition, the 4 quality of representation was so poor that the Arizona Supreme Court openly 5 criticized his written advocacy. State v. Wood, 881 P.2d at 1166 n.3. He used a 6 mind-numbing combination of incorporations by reference in an appellate brief.

7 There is no doubt that the direct appeal in any case – and especially a 8 capital case -- is extremely important. Evitts v. Lucey, 470 U.S. 387 (1985). As 9 the Supreme Court stated in Evitts, “A system of appeal as of right is established 10 precisely to assure that only those who are validly convicted [and Mr. Wood adds: 11 sentenced] have their freedom drastically curtailed.” Id. at 399, 400. Here, 12 laboring under a conflict as a result of his new legal employer, Mr. Wood's 13 appellate counsel at times presented almost no advocacy at all. Appellate counsel 14 was adversely impacted by the conflict. Under Mickens, to prevail Mr. Wood 15 need only show deficient performance, which was abundantly present in the 16 conduct of this appeal. Mickens, 535 U.S. at 174 (case argued and decided on the 17 assumption that the petitioner only needs to show deficient performance and not 18 probable effect on the outcome).

19 This, too, is a substantial claim.

20 4. Failure to Investigate, Develop and Present Mitigating 21 Evidence.

22 Trial counsel presented only one witness at the sentencing proceeding, Dr.
23 Michael Breslow who did not interview Mr. Wood until less than two weeks 24 before the sentencing hearing. Dr. Breslow's testimony in mitigation takes up 25 only 18 transcript pages. (R.T. 7/12/91, 8-23.) In addition to Dr. Breslow's brief 26 testimony, counsel's sentencing presentation included a transcript of an interview 27 with Mr. Wood's father, Joseph Wood, Jr., a transcript of an interview with a 28

1 friend of Mr. Wood's and a stack of Veteran's Administration and Air Force 2 records that counsel neither discussed nor analyzed. (R.T. 7/12/91, 24-28.)

3 Trial counsel failed to get a number of available records and interview 4 important mitigation witnesses. He did not learn about and did not present the 5 vast extent of the addiction and mental health problems on both sides of Mr.
6 Wood's family. Mr. Wood's grandparents were alcoholics. Numerous aunts, 7 uncles and cousins had serious mental health problems and some committed 8 suicide. He did not show that Mr. Wood's father suffered from PTSD upon return 9 from Vietnam, relying on a taped interview which only briefly mentioned the 10 father's service in Vietnam.

11 Incredibly, trial counsel did not refute the statement in the presentence 12 report ordered by the trial judge questioning whether Mr. Wood received an 13 honorable discharge from the Air Force. The discharge was in the very papers, 14 but hidden in the voluminous number of pages, that counsel submitted to the trial 15 court. Counsel made no mention of it and neither the trial court nor the Arizona 16 Supreme Court found honorable discharge for service to our country as a 17 mitigating factor. But see Porter v. McCollum, 130 S. Ct. 447, 455 (2009)
18 (service to country in the armed services is mitigating circumstance that Florida 19 Supreme Court should not have discounted).

20 The claim of ineffective assistance of counsel at sentencing is a substantial 21 one. The Supreme Court has found counsel ineffective on numerous occasions in 22 capital cases for failing to adequately investigate and present mitigating evidence.
23 E.g., Williams v. Taylor, 529 U.S. 362 (2000); Wiggins v. Smith, 539 U.S. 510
24 (2003); Rompilla v. Beard, 545 U.S. 374 (2005); Porter v. McCollum, 558 U.S. 30 25 (2009) (per curiam); and Sears v. Upton, 130 S. Ct. 3259 (2010).

26 C. Post-conviction counsel was ineffective.

27 While initial post-conviction counsel filed a petition and raised claims she 28

1 failed to raise the issues of substantial merit set forth above: the denial of the 2 funds for the neuromapping, the claim that counsel was ineffective for failing to 3 impeach Officer Sueme, and the apparent-from-the record claim of appellate 4 counsel's conflict.

5 While she included claims of ineffective assistance of counsel, she almost 6 entirely failed to conduct investigation to support those claims. She did not 7 request or receive the assistance of a mitigation specialist and did not interview a 8 single life history witness, aside from Mr. Wood himself (although only as to 9 limited topic areas), or collect a single social history document or retain an expert.
10 She did not interview Mr. Wood's mother, father, sister (his brother had died in 11 1993), son, and former spouse. The deposition of trial counsel, which she did 12 undertake, could not be considered a mitigation investigation. The state post-13 conviction court denied an evidentiary hearing because post-conviction counsel 14 failed to present evidence of prejudice to establish a claim of ineffective 15 assistance of counsel. As a consequence, post-conviction counsel was ineffective.

16 D. Various factors favor granting this Rule 60(b) motion

17 Rule 60(b)(6) provides for relief from judgment for "any other reason that 18 justifies relief" from operation of the judgment. It is "properly invoked where 19 there are extraordinary circumstances, or where the judgment may work an 20 extreme an undue hardship, and should be liberally construed when substantial 21 justice will be served." Cornell v. Nix, 119 F.3d 1329, 1322 (8th Cir. 1997).

22 1. The Supervening Change of Law is Remarkable.

23 It is well-established that the decision in Martinez v. Ryan, which underlies 24 this motion, is remarkable. The Ninth Circuit has recognized this. "Unlike the 25 'hardly extraordinary' development of the Supreme Court resolving a circuit split, 26 . . ., the Supreme Court's development in Martinez constitutes a remarkable – if 27 'limited,' Martinez, 132 S. Ct. at 1319 – development in the Court's equitable 28

1 jurisprudence.” Lopez v. Ryan, 678 F.3d 1131, 1136 (9th Cir. 2012). Dissenting 2 from Martinez, Justice Scalia acknowledged how far Martinez strayed from prior 3 Supreme Court precedent. He complained that the Court’s holding was “a 4 repudiation of the longstanding principle governing procedural default, which 5 Coleman and other cases consistently applied.” Martinez, 132 S. Ct. at 1324 6 (Scalia, J., dissenting). He added that Martinez resulted in “a radical alteration of 7 our habeas jurisprudence.” Id. at 1327.

8 Martinez was decided when Mr. Wood’s habeas case was on appeal to the 9 Ninth Circuit. While the appeal was pending, Mr. Wood sought a remand under 10 Martinez but it was never granted.

11 This factor weighs in favor of granting the motion.

12 2. Mr. Wood is Diligent in Bringing this Motion.

13 As noted, Mr. Wood’s case, up until now, has never received the mitigation 14 investigation it requires. The Supreme Court in Williams and Wiggins held that 15 capital counsel have an “obligation to conduct a thorough investigation of the 16 defendant’s background” for “all reasonably available mitigating evidence.”
17 Wiggins, 539 U.S. at 522, 524 (quoting Williams, 529 U.S. at 396). This motion 18 is brought approximately two months after counsel from the Federal Public 19 Defender were appointed to this case. Undersigned counsel and their staff have 20 striven to conduct a proper mitigation investigation in the ensuing two months.
21 The two month delay in bringing this motion is reasonable. While some of the 22 claims presented are not directly tied to the investigation, it would not have 23 benefitted Mr. Wood to present such claims earlier with an intention to bring 24 another, serial Rule 60(b) motion.

25 In other capital cases, courts have held that much more extensive periods of 26 time are reasonable. Thompson v. Bell, 580 F.3d 423, 443 (6th Cir. 2009) (four 27 years); Ruiz v. Quarterman, 504 F.3d 523, 525-26 (5th Cir. 2007) (after habeas 28

1 judgment was filed, petitioner returned to state court and after the state court
2 ruled, petitioner returned to federal court and was diligent); Barnett v. Roper, 941 3 F. Supp. 1099, 1118-19 (E.D. Mo. 2013) (six years).

4 This factor weighs in favor of granting the motion.

5 3. Finality.

6 To be sure there are competing interests in finality. On the one hand, the 7 state and the victim have an interest in carrying out the judgment. On the other 8 hand, this is a capital case in which Mr. Wood faces the more irreversible finality 9 of death. See Barnett, 941 F. Supp. 2d at 1119. It is generally acknowledged that 10 “death is a punishment different from all other sanctions in kind rather than 11 degree.” Woodson v. North Carolina, 428 U.S. 280, 303-04 (1976).

12 In Gonzalez v. Crosby, 545 U.S. 524, 529 (2005), the United States 13 Supreme Court held it “give[s] little weight to the respondent’s appeal to the 14 virtues of finality” as “[t]hat policy consideration standing alone, is unpersuasive 15 in the interpretation of a provision [60(b)] whose sole purpose is to make an 16 exception to finality.”

17 Because of the irreversible finality of death, because appeals by 18 respondents for finality are not given much weight in this context, and because a 19 number of substantial claims have not been heard on the merits, this factor favors 20 Mr. Wood. See Thompson, 580 F.3d at 444 (“In this case, the finality of the 21 judgment against Thompson must be balanced against the more irreversible 22 finality of his execution[.]”).

23 4. Time between Denial of Cert. and Rule 60(b) Motion.

24 Mr. Wood’s petition for a writ of certiorari to the United States Supreme 25 Court was denied on October 7, 2013. He is filing his 60(b) petition only nine and 26 a half months after that. He is filing it now because he has had for only the past 27 two months the benefit of the investigatory resources of the Office of the Federal 28

1 Public Defender.

2 This factor, too, favors Mr. Wood.

3 5. The degree of connection between Martinez and the motion.

4 Mr. Wood's motion is integrally tied to Martinez. Every aspect of his 5 motion relates to Martinez and post-conviction counsel's ineffectiveness. Indeed, 6 this case is more tied to Martinez than many 60(b) motions because the post-7 conviction counsel in this case is the same person who was post-conviction 8 counsel in Martinez.

9 6. Comity.

10 In Phelps v. Alameida, 569 F.3d 1120 (9th Cir. 2009), the Ninth Circuit 11 explained, "in the context of Rule 60(b)(6), we need not be concerned about 12 upsetting the comity principle when a petitioner seeks reconsideration not of a 13 judgment on the merits of his habeas petition, but rather of an erroneous 14 judgment that prevented the court from ever reaching the merits of that petition."
15 Id. at 1139. Here, the federal courts have never reached the merits of the claims 16 regarding the denial of the neuromapping, the ineffectiveness claim relating to 17 Officer Sueme's testimony and the grave risk aggravator, and the conflict of 18 interest claim. The claim regarding the ineffective assistance of counsel at 19 sentencing focuses on the district court's failure to fund adequate investigation, 20 not the merits. That, too, has a significant non-merits component.

21 Comity, therefore, weighs in favor of Mr. Wood.

22 V. CONCLUSION

23 Mr. Wood's 60(b) motion attacks the integrity of the habeas proceedings, 24 focusing on claims that were once defaulted that are no longer defaulted because 25 of Martinez. It also focuses on this Court's denial of resources that prevented Mr.
26 Wood from adequately developing his claim that counsel was ineffective during 27 sentencing. As all of the Rule 60(b) factors weigh in favor of granting relief from 28

1 judgment, Mr. Wood requests that the Court grant his motion.

2 Respectfully submitted this 17th day of July 2014.
