The building at 330 S Burlington Ave, was in violation of numerous city fire codes &, although citations had been issued, the building was never brought up to code. A follow-up story in Los Angeles Times concluded that entire Pico-Union / Westlake area "suffers from life-threatening fire safety violations." Rent Escrow Acct Program (REAP) & Rent Reduction Program (RRP) have proven extremely effective in forcing owners of slum dwellings to bring their buildings up to at least minimum standards of habitability. REAP forces slumlords to correct flagrant violations by depriving them of their monthly rent checks. This program has had a better than 80% success rate with respect to 898 buildings that have been placed into REAP since March, 1989. Despite these successes, Burlington Ave fire provided a tragic & graphic illustration of the need to strengthen both of these pioneering progs.
