

HOME FEATURED ROTATOR

Tucson City Council Democratic Incumbents Re-elected

Story by AZPM Staff

LAST UPDATED NOVEMBER 6, 2013

PHOTO: Andrea Kelly, AZPM

Tucson City Council member Karin Uhlich, holding her foster son Isaiah, at the Democratic Party gathering on election night, Nov. 5, 2013.

Tucson's three Democratic City Council incumbents won easy re-election Tuesday.

Incumbents Karin Uhlich and Richard Fimbres defeated Republican challengers. Democrat Steve Kozachik, who switched from GOP registration early this year, was unopposed for his second term.

Uhlich won in Ward 3 with 34,708 votes, 58.4 percent, to capture her third four-year term. She defeated Republican challenger Ben Buehler-Garcia for the second time. Buehler-Garcia, who lost to uhlich in 2009 by 175 votes, got 24,589 this time.

"The campaign was really about recognizing that Tucson can celebrate and be proud of the progress that we've made and the path that we're on," Uhlich said, "and this is just such an affirmation that we live in a great city, and we want to embrace the future with a positive outlook that we have every right to hold on to."

City Councilman Richard

SHARE THIS

f g k t

RELATED STORIES

METRO WEEK: Changes Ahead for Tucson City Government?

Affect of city changes: 'It would be very difficult to have failing Tucson and a prosperous region.'

Tucson Council Winners Sworn In, Face Immediate Budget Challenges

Three incumbents start new four-year term today, all say long-term budget fixes are priority.

Tucson Voters Pass Increase to City Budget Limit

City can now spend $50M more than currently allowed if revenues are available, thanks to the support of 62 percent.

story categories

[Arizona] [Government] [News] [Politics] [Tucson]

SHARE + SAVE VIDEO

Download "2013 Tucson Elections" as Widescreen QRHD (480x272) [480 x 272]

Embed "2013 Tucson Elections"

Fimbres, Democrat.

Asked why her margin of victory was so much bigger this time, Uhlich said, "I think the times have changed, clearly, and I think I ran on my record and people have seen the efforts that have been made in the last four years to make sure we navigate this downturn to the benefit to as many people as possible."

Fimbres won a second term with 35,464 votes, or 60 percent, over GOP newcomer Mike Polak II, a computer-science and aerospace engineer who moved to Tucson four years ago. Polak received 23,206 votes.

"I think it sends a strong message on the work that we've been doing in the city of Tucson for the long term sustainability," Fimbres said. "My goal was to get people back to work, get them back to work and to start generating sales taxes, which is what the city of Tucson lives off of."

Kozachik said he was elated about the Democratic wins. He changed from the Republican Party to the Democratic Party at the outset of this election cycle, and ran unopposed for reelection.

City Councilman Steve Kozachik, Democrat.

"How about those margins of victory?" he said. "This is going to be one kick ass council. We are going to fight back against the Legislature."

Kozachik said his party change was the right move.

"I feel like Dorothy; ought to click my heels and say, 'There is no place like home.'"

Democratic Mayor Jonathan Rothschild said he was content with the results, which mean he keeps an all-Democratic council.

"I'm very happy with the team I have, and I want to make it clear, we do not all agree all the time by any means, but we are able to have discussions they are constructive," he said. "We try to help each other get to the right results."

Tucson voters also approved two propositions, one to raise the city's budget limit by $50 million, and the other for the 10-year city general plan.

Proposition 401, which passed with 62.1 percent of the vote, means the council can increase spending by that amount if revenues were available.

Proposition 402, passed with 65.8 percent. Plan Tucson, the city's general plan for the next 10 years, was approved as required under state law.

MORE: Arizona, Government, News, Politics, Tucson

COMMENT

AZPM encourages comments, but comments that contain profanity, unrelated information, threats, libel, defamatory statements, obscenities, pornography or that violate the law are not allowed. Comments that promote commercial products or services are not allowed. Comments in violation of this policy will be removed. Continued posting of comments that violate this policy will result in the commenter being banned from the site.

By submitting your comments, you hereby give AZPM the right to post your comments and potentially use them in any other form of media operated by this institution.

0
Comments

Arizona Public Media

Login ▾

Recommend

Share

Sort by Best ▾

Start the discussion...

Be the first to comment.

ALSO ON ARIZONA PUBLIC MEDIA

Downtown Tucson Transit Center Developer Selected

1 comment • 8 hours ago

Gregory J. Gonzales — I could make a joke about a Whole Foods gracing our downtown next, but the development ...

Voters Choose Between Community Projects, More Debt

17 comments • 16 days ago

Steven Morris — Didn't get the bonds passed...something strange happening here. They love the incumbents but ...

WHAT'S THIS?

Low Voter Turnout Expected for Pima County Election Tuesday

1 comment • 15 days ago

tunkashila — So every last bond proposal was soundly rejected but the voters decided they loved the ...

The 8th Annual Haunted Halloween Arizona Spotlight

2 comments • 20 days ago

Jeri Quinzio — Beth Surdut's story sent chills up my spine. And Peter Lorre's voice - once heard never forgotten.

CONTACT AZPM

CONNECT

ABOUT AZPM

SUPPORT

COMPLIANCE

ARIZONA PUBLIC MEDIA
MAIL: P.O. Box 210067
Tucson, AZ 85721-0067

LIVE EVENTS
AZPM E-NEWSLETTER
AZPM ON FACEBOOK
AZPM ON TWITTER
AZPM ON YOUTUBE
AZPM ON GOOGLE+
AZPM ON INSTAGRAM
AZPM NEWS ON TWITTER

PHONE: 520-621-5828
TOLL FREE: 800-521-5828
FAX: 520-621-3360
EMAIL: Contact Us

ABOUT US
STAFF DIRECTORY
EMPLOYMENT
COMMUNITY ADVISORY BOARD
SIGNAL COVERAGE MAPS
DIRECTIONS TO AZPM
CONTACT US
ABOUT THE UofA

DONATE NOW
CORPORATE & FOUNDATION
SUSTAINED GIVING
DONATE A CAR
VOLUNTEER

FCC PUBLIC FILES
PUBLIC FILE CONTACT
ANNUAL REPORTS AND FILINGS
FINANCIAL REPORTS
OPEN MEETING POLICY
CAB MEETING CALENDAR

Arizona Public Media® is a registered trademark of the Arizona Board of Regents. ©2007-Present Arizona Public Media®

