cancellation of removal based on their failure to establish the requisite hardship to their United States citizen child.

Petitioners introduced new evidence of hardship consisting of evidence that Claudia Espinoza has recently been diagnosed with “antepartum depression,” and that she was approximately eighteen weeks pregnant at the time of filing the motion. We conclude that the BIA properly considered the new evidence offered by petitioners, and acted within its broad discretion in determining that the evidence did not establish extreme hardship to a qualifying relative for purposes of cancellation of removal, and therefore was insufficient to warrant reopening. See Sing v. INS, 295 F.3d 1037, 1039 (9th Cir. 2002) (the BIA’s denial of a motion to reopen shall be reversed on if it is “arbitrary, irrational, or contrary to law”).

PETITION FOR REVIEW DENIED.
