substantial evidence the agency's factual findings, applying the standards governing adverse credibility determinations created by the REAL ID Act. Shrestha v. Holder, 590 F.3d 1034, 1039-40 (9th Cir. 2010). We deny the petition for review.

Substantial evidence supports the agency's adverse credibility determination based on its implausibility finding, as well as the inconsistencies between petitioners' testimonies regarding the number of phone call threats they received and the location of Kumar's wife when someone threw a rock through a window at their home. See id. at 1044 (under the REAL ID Act, the agency may base an adverse credibility finding on plausibility, inconsistency, or any other relevant factor in considering the totality of circumstances); see also Don v. Gonzales, 476 F.3d 738, 743 (9th Cir. 2007) (substantial evidence supported the agency's implausibility finding). Thus, petitioners' asylum and withholding of removal claims fail.

PETITION FOR REVIEW DENIED.
