the Convention Against Torture ("CAT"). For the reasons stated below, we deny the petition.

Substantial evidence supports the immigration judge's ("IJ") adverse credibility finding, which the BIA affirmed. See Ren v. Holder, 648 F.3d 1079, 1084–85 (9th Cir. 2011) (explaining the standard of review under the REAL ID Act). The BIA permissibly found Petitioner incredible given that Petitioner was inconsistent in her testimony regarding whether and when she had an intrauterine device inserted. Moreover, Petitioner failed to present specific documentary evidence that independently established her claims. See Al-Harbi v. INS, 242 F.3d 882, 891 (9th Cir. 2001) (holding that "documentary evidence pertaining to the asylum applicant himself and to the events in which he was involved . . . can independently establish facts essential to . . . an asylum claim"). The BIA, therefore, properly denied Petitioner's claims for asylum, withholding of removal, and CAT relief.

Petition DENIED.
