PROGRAM OVERVIEW

The Ninth Circuit Court of Appeals established its pro bono program in 1993 to provide pro bono counsel to pro se parties with meritorious or complex appeals, to provide a valuable learning experience to young attorneys and law students, and to assist the court in processing pro se civil appeals more equitably and efficiently.

The program was adopted by the court in June 1993 and has been fully implemented since November 1993. (See Appendix 1.) The goal of the program is to provide pro bono counsel to pro se parties in civil appeals in which briefing and argument by counsel would benefit the court's review. All appeals selected for inclusion in the program have been pre-screened by a staff attorney, the appellate commissioner, and/or a panel of judges for a determination of the propriety of its inclusion. Only cases presenting issues of first impression or some complexity, or cases otherwise warranting further briefing and oral argument, are selected for the appointment of counsel under the program. Since the selected appeals are generally more complex than the average pro se case presented by staff attorneys to oral screening panels, counsel is needed to assist the court to ensure that pro se cases receive the same attention as other cases of similar complexity.

The program is based in large part on the cooperation and volunteer efforts of the private bar, and on the court's commitment to providing a valuable learning experience to participating attorneys and law students. Panels of private volunteer attorneys in each district of the circuit are coordinated and maintained by an attorney in each district serving as district coordinator for the program. The court's pro bono coordinator works with and relies heavily upon the district coordinators in locating counsel for each appeal and for recruiting volunteers for the program. With the potential exception of some of the amicus curiae appointments and those appointments specifically for purposes of mediation, the court has committed to hearing oral argument in all cases selected for the program, which should further enhance the experience of participating attorneys and students.

The pro bono program offers attorneys and law students a valuable learning experience while providing pro se litigants with meritorious or complex appeals access to quality representation, and benefits the court in the increased efficiency and effectiveness of its review of such cases.

APPEALS SELECTED

Approximately fifty percent of all new appeals filed in the Ninth Circuit have at least one party who is proceeding pro se. All new pro se civil appeals (including habeas petitions) are reviewed at the outset by court staff for jurisdictional defects and are dismissed early on if no jurisdiction exists. Still others are dismissed for failure to prosecute or otherwise summarily disposed of during the course of the appeal. Many of the remaining pro se appeals (primarily those determined after the completion of briefing by staff and/or judges to meet the criteria set forth in 9th Cir. Rule 34-4 to be submitted without oral argument) are processed on the merits by staff attorneys through presentation to oral screening panels.

The remaining pro se appeals (primarily those determined by staff attorneys or judges to warrant further briefing and/or oral argument) are reviewed for a determination whether counsel should be appointed. Appeals that have been initially referred or submitted to oral screening panels are sometimes considered to be too complex for the oral screening process or require further briefing and/or oral argument for some other reason. These appeals are "kicked" from the screening process by staff attorneys or oral screening panels and referred to the coordinator for inclusion in the program and supplemental briefing. Still other appeals are referred by motions panels or staff attorneys prior to the initial briefing and inventory process on the basis of a motion for appointment of counsel and/or a review of the district court or agency record.

Cases selected for inclusion in the program include a broad range of legal issues. While a significant percentage of the cases are prisoner civil rights appeals or immigration petitions, many other civil cases are included, such as labor and employment cases, discrimination, bankruptcy, social security, Indian law, mining law, contract and civil forfeiture appeals. Direct criminal (and most habeas corpus) appeals are not included in the program because the appellants are entitled to paid counsel under the Criminal Justice Act and because any such appellant proceeding pro se is probably doing so out of choice. However, habeas corpus appeals presenting issues of first impression, complex issues of fact or law, or raising meritorious claims warranting further briefing are selected for inclusion in the program.

Due to the complex and changeable nature of immigration law, the court has posted an immigration law outline on the website to assist attorneys in immigration cases. In addition, pro bono attorneys appointed by the court may request assistance from the Immigrant Legal Resource Center (ILRC), by calling 415/255-9499. (Let them know you are pro bono counsel for a Ninth Circuit petition for review and are seeking mentor assistance.) Links to both the ILRC website and the court's "Immigration Outline" are on the court's website at www.ca9.uscourts.gov/probono.

In summary, program cases are generally (though not exclusively) selected after briefing and inventory have been completed. This allows staff to more fully evaluate the merits of the appeal and allows the court to assure participating counsel that only meritorious or otherwise deserving cases will be selected for the program. One measure of the usefulness of the court's pre-screening process, and of the success of the program generally, is that the success rate for the pro bono attorneys and law students participating in the program has been approximately 50% (at least partial reversal or other termination favorable to pro bono client) since the inception of the program.

PROCEDURES FOR APPOINTING COUNSEL

Once an order has been filed placing an appeal in the pro bono program, the court's coordinator contacts the district coordinator for the district in which counsel is to be appointed and forwards copies of any briefs or case materials that are not available electronically via Pacer, so that counsel has access to all previous filings in this court as well as the district court or agency record. The district coordinator then locates available counsel, who will have the opportunity to familiarize themselves with the issues on appeal, the history of the case, and the parties involved before committing themselves to the appointment. Pro bono counsel must be a member of the bar of the Ninth Circuit.

If no attorney is available for a given appeal in a given district, the court's coordinator will contact a district coordinator from another district or will solicit a participating law school clinic within the circuit to handle the appeal. Occasionally, attorneys outside the circuit are appointed as pro bono counsel. If a volunteer attorney reviews the briefs and/or other materials and determines that no arguable basis exists for the appeal, the court coordinator will contact the authorizing judges or Commissioner and discuss the propriety of vacating the order selecting the case for the program.

Once willing and available counsel has been located for an appeal, the court's coordinator works with him or her to formulate a mutually acceptable briefing schedule. The court's coordinator will then enter a Clerk's order appointing the attorney as counsel of record and establishing a briefing schedule. The coordinator also sends counsel an email confirming the appointment and setting forth the relevant aspects of the program. Pro bono counsel is advised to send a letter to the client outlining the terms of the representation agreement and to obtain the client's written consent. (See Appendices 2 and 3 for examples of orders placing a case in the Pro Bono Program, an appointment order, and a sample representation letter.)

The court's Pro Bono Coordinator will work with appointed counsel in all respects to assist them in substituting into the appeal and to process all further motions in the appeal, including requests for modification of the briefing schedule, motions to withdraw as counsel, and cost reimbursement requests. Where appropriate, counsel may request that the appeal be included in the court's mediation program.

DISTRICT VOLUNTEER PANELS

Each of the districts in the circuit have a district coordinator who recruits volunteer attorneys for the program, maintains the current list of volunteers, and locates individual attorneys to accept specific appointments. The district coordinator is generally the chair of that district's delegation of attorney representatives to the Ninth Circuit Judicial Conference or is someone named by that person. (A list of the district coordinators and their contact information is provided with the attorney sign-up form, which is available on the court's website at www.ca9.uscourts.gov/probono.)

The district coordinators recruit volunteers through a variety of methods. Advertisements or announcements in local bar association newsletters or at local bar events have proved very successful in recruiting volunteers. Word of mouth works well in smaller legal communities. Another important resource is the annual class of new lawyer representatives to the Ninth Circuit Judicial Conference, who can be recruited to volunteer for appointments and/or to recruit their colleagues to do so.

The Ninth Circuit Lawyer Representatives, together with the Ninth Circuit Senior Advisory Board, have made a commitment to participation in the program, both in terms of volunteering to accept appointments and assisting in the recruitment of other volunteer attorneys. The Lawyer Representatives Coordinating Committee and the Senior Advisory Board sponsored a joint resolution urging circuit-wide participation in the program by the private bar, which was adopted by the Ninth Circuit Judicial Conference in August, 1993. (See Appendix 1.)

The limited scope of the representation of a litigant on appeal is very attractive as a manageable pro bono commitment. In addition, the commitment to hearing oral argument in these cases, the reimbursement of qualifying expenses and the pre-screening of the appeals selected for the program provide strong incentives for participation. Because of the overwhelming support of and participation in the program circuit-wide, there are more volunteer attorneys than there are cases in the program.

LAW SCHOOL CLINIC PARTICIPATION

The Ninth Circuit has historically worked in cooperation with certain law school clinics in the circuit to appoint law students under the supervision of a professor to represent pro se litigants. Pursuant to 9th Cir. R. 46-4, law students supervised by an attorney admitted to this court may appear on behalf of any client with the written consent of that client. This program began solely as a learning experience for the students without much regard to the need for counsel in specific appeals, but is now an integral part of the pro bono program and includes the same, carefully screened cases selected for the program as those handled by the private bar.

With the expansion of the pro bono program, the court has recruited additional law schools to participate. Cases are sometimes referred to these law schools for appointment either because they have been difficult to place in the district of origin for some reason or because the school has requested a specific number of cases of a particular type.

When a law school is appointed, the same procedures are followed as described above, except that the court's coordinator deals directly with the law school rather than enlisting the aid of a district coordinator. The law school must obtain the written consent of the litigant to representation by a law student under the supervision of a professor. In addition, the student, supervising attorney, and dean must individually certify that the requirements for law student participation are met. ("Requirements for Student Practice" and the requisite consent and certification forms, are available on the court's website at www.ca9.uscourts.gov/forms. Forms must be electronically filed, in the "Forms/Notices/Disclosures" filing category.)

SCOPE OF APPOINTMENT AND ORAL ARGUMENT

The order of appointment provides that pro bono counsel will be appointed to represent the appellant "for the purposes of this appeal only." Accordingly, the appointment includes only the handling of the appeal and the drafting of a petition for rehearing where appropriate, but does not include the preparation and filing of a petition for certiorari in the Supreme Court or any other proceedings in any other court or agency unless specifically requested by this court or agreed upon between the attorney and the client.

If circumstances arise that require counsel to withdraw as counsel for appellant, such a motion may be based on any of the established grounds for doing so. A motion to withdraw will not generally be disfavored solely on the basis that it would result in further delay unless such delay would severely prejudice the litigants.

In most cases, every attempt will be made to appoint counsel from the same district in which the appeal will be argued. The court has committed to hearing oral argument in all cases in which pro bono counsel is appointed through the program. See 9th Cir. Gen. Order 3.8. (In cases where appointment is for mediation purposes or as amicus curiae, the court may not guarantee briefing or argument. Counsel may withdraw if mediation is not successful.) When counsel is appointed, court staff implement several internal court procedures designed to notify the merits panel of the appeal's inclusion in the program.

REIMBURSABLE EXPENSES

Attorneys appointed by the court to represent pro se appellants pro bono may (but are not required to) seek reimbursement for certain necessary and reasonable costs incurred in their representation. Because the court has limited funds to reimburse eligible costs in these appeals, counsel are requested to consider absorbing some or all of their eligible costs where feasible.

Attorneys' fees and certain costs are available to prevailing pro bono counsel under applicable statutes and rules to the same extent as retained counsel. If you prevail in the Ninth Circuit, you are strongly encouraged to seek reimbursement of qualifying costs from the opposing party under Fed. R. App. P. 39 and accompanying local rules. The court must be reimbursed for any expenses paid by the Pro Bono Program that are subsequently recovered from the opposing party.

Requests for reimbursement of costs must be submitted to the program coordinator and include supporting documentation and receipts. (A reimbursement request form is provided on the court's website at www.ca9.uscourts.gov/probono.) Requested costs may not exceed actual out-of-pocket costs, and the court will not reimburse any portion of attorneys' fees. If you anticipate that you will incur additional costs not listed below for which you will seek reimbursement, you must contact the Pro Bono Coordinator, at (415) 355-8020, before you incur them. All cost reimbursement requests must be approved according to these guidelines unless specific exceptions are made in advance.

Expenses covered by the program include the following:

1. Airfare for travel (within the circuit) to oral argument for one attorney, or if a law school is appointed, for the supervising attorney and one student. Attorneys must contact the Clerk's Office at (415) 355-7873 to obtain a letter authorizing travel at government expense before making any travel arrangements, and must then use the government travel agent to arrange for airline ticketing. (These tickets are billed directly to the government.) Out-of-circuit attorneys must make their own travel arrangements and airfare is not reimbursable.
2. Other reimbursable expenses related to travel for oral argument include reasonable accommodations where necessary due to distance, reasonable ground transportation to and from the airport, parking, and meals. In many cases, the travel authorization letter can be used to obtain reduced government rates for hotel accommodations and car rentals. The total for all lodging and meal expenses should not exceed government per diem rates for the particular area in which the argument is held. Costs for alcoholic beverages or entertainment are not reimbursable.
3. Miscellaneous reimbursable expenses incurred during the course of representation include the following:

- Photocopying and/or necessary printing costs for briefs and excerpts of record, motions, and a petition for rehearing. (See 9th Cir. R. 39-1.2 and 39-1.3.)
- Computer assisted legal research costs, not to exceed $1000.
- PACER fees incurred for accessing the district court record of the case on appeal, not to exceed $1000.
- Documented long-distance telephone toll calls to the client.
- Postage and delivery.

1993 Resolution No. 3

1993 Resolution No. 3

Encourage Ninth Circuit Attorneys to Participate in the Pro Se Representation Project

Submitted by

The Ninth Circuit Lawyer Representatives Coordinating Committee and
The Ninth Circuit Senior Advisory Board

WHEREAS, the number of appeals filed in the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit which involve pro se litigants has reached unprecedented levels; and

WHEREAS, the court of appeals' consideration of complex nonfrivolous pro se appeals would be greatly assisted in many cases by the appointment of pro bono counsel for the litigant;

WHEREAS, the court of appeals is in the process of establishing a comprehensive Pro Se Project to provide for the appointment of pro bono counsel in complex civil appeals where a party is proceeding pro se; and

WHEREAS, the Pro Se Project will depend upon the participation, active involvement, and contribution of the private bar in order to succeed; and

WHEREAS, the Senior Advisory Board has endorsed the project and offered its support for the project's successful implementation; and

WHEREAS, members of the Lawyer Representatives Coordinating Committee have committed themselves to support the proposed Pro Se Project and to assist in coordinating the project in their districts;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

All lawyer representatives and all other members of the Ninth Circuit bar:

1) Assist the United States Court of Appeals to develop, carry out, and coordinate an effective Pro Se Project to provide counsel in complex, nonfrivolous civil appeals where a party is proceeding pro se; and

2) Become involved with the Pro Se Project in their districts; and

3) Personally encourage their colleagues toward the goal of pro bono representation sufficient to meet the needs of the project.

Statement of Reasons

More than one third of all new appeals filed in the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit (2,783 of 7,979 appeals filed in 1992) have at least one party who is proceeding pro se. All new pro se civil appeals are reviewed at the outset by court staff; many of these are dismissed for jurisdictional or procedural defects, or are simple or frivolous appeals disposed of on the merits without the need for assistance of counsel. The remaining pro se appeals are generally more complex and/or meritorious, and require more of the court's time and resources to resolve. Often, the court's consideration of the appeals would be greatly benefitted by the assistance of pro bono counsel to ensure that these pro se appeals receive the same attention as other case of similar complexity.

To this end, the court is in the process of establishing a Pro Se Project by which the court will appoint pro bono counsel in the more complex and meritorious civil pro se appeals, including habeas corpus appeals. To the extent possible, counsel will be appointed in the districts in which the cases arise. The pro bono lawyers in each district will be coordinated by the chair of that district's lawyer representatives (or his or her designee), who will work in conjunction with the court's Coordinating Staff Attorney. The court has committed itself to hear oral argument in all cases in which counsel is appointed through the project. Funds are available, if needed and requested, to reimburse reasonable and necessary out-of-pocket expenses.

The court anticipates, based on available statistics regarding pro se appeals, that over 100 pro se civil appeals each year will warrant the appointment of counsel. The court is planning to enlist the aid of law school clinics throughout the circuit to provide representation in some of these cases, but the court must rely on participation by the private bar for the majority of the appeals. The lawyer Representatives Coordinating Committee and the Senior Advisory Board have pledged their support, and they have begun to solicit the assistance of the private bar.

Appendix 3
Sample Representation Letter

[Firm's Letterhead]

Re: CA No. [appeal number and title]

Dear [Client]:

We are pleased to accept the opportunity to represent you with regard to the above-referenced appeal. The purpose of this letter is to set forth the basic terms upon which we will represent you, including the anticipated scope of our services and the nature of our pro bono representation.

1. Scope of Engagement. The undersigned have been appointed as pro bono counsel by the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit (the "Court") to represent you in the above referenced appeal. Our appointment is limited and includes only the handling of this appeal and the drafting of a petition for rehearing if requested by you, but does not include the preparation and filing of a petition for certiorari in the Supreme Court or any other proceedings in any other court.

2. Pro bono Representation. Please be advised that we are representing you as participants in the Court's pro bono project. We will seek reimbursement from the Court for reasonable and necessary costs incurred in our representation of you in the appeal. In addition, we may seek an award of statutory attorney's fees from appellees if appropriate. You will not be responsible for any attorney's fees or costs incurred in our representation of you.

3. Errors and Omissions Coverage. Under California law, all lawyers are required to advise their clients whether they maintain errors and omissions insurance coverage applicable to the services to be rendered. We confirm that we do maintain such insurance coverage applicable to the services which we anticipate rendering in connection with this matter.

4. Other Issues. For all engagements undertaken by our firm, our firm performs a conflict check, i.e., a review of its records to determine whether or not the firm is currently involved in the engagement. We have performed the requisite conflict check and wish to advise you of its results. The check revealed that a former principal of our law firm, while still a principal of our firm, filled out paperwork on February 24, 1990, indicating that he would be representing the management of ABC Corp. in conjunction with a corporate acquisition. Our records indicate that such representation was never undertaken. We do not believe that a conflict of interest exists with regard to our representation of you in this matter; however, we make the foregoing disclosure so that you may have all relevant facts before you in determining whether or not to go forward with this engagement. Should we learn any additional information that leads us to believe that a potential or actual conflict of interest does exist, we will of course inform you promptly of that fact in writing.

For best results, we look forward to a high degree of cooperation from you. Although we will endeavor to achieve a satisfactory result and to keep you apprised of the status of these matters, no guarantees of any kind can be made concerning the outcome of any litigation, or of any other legal services in which the voluntary consent or action of another party is involved.

While we would prefer to confirm the terms of our engagement by a less formal method than a written letter such as this, in certain instances attorneys are required by California law or firm policy to memorialize these matters in writing. Accordingly, we ask that you review this letter carefully and, if it is acceptable to you, please so indicate by returning a signed copy at your earliest convenience. Enclosed is an additional copy of this letter for your files.

We look forward to working with you on this engagement. Please do not hesitate to call either of us if you have any questions.

Very truly yours,
