U.S. COURT OF APPEALS

JUDICIAL COUNCIL OF THE NINTH CIRCUIT

IN RE COMPLAINT OF JUDICIAL MISCONDUCT

No. 24-90036

ORDER

MURGUIA, Chief Judge:

Complainant, a pro se litigant, has filed a complaint of judicial misconduct against a district judge. Review of this complaint is governed by the Rules for Judicial-Conduct and Judicial-Disability Proceedings (“Judicial-Conduct Rules”), the federal statutes addressing judicial conduct and disability, 28 U.S.C. § 351 et seq., and relevant prior decisions of the Ninth Circuit Judicial Council. In accordance with these authorities, the names of complainant and the subject judge shall not be disclosed in this order. See Judicial-Conduct Rule 11(g)(2).

The Judicial Conduct and Disability Act provides a remedy if a federal judge “has engaged in conduct prejudicial to the effective and expeditious administration of the business of the courts.” 28 U.S.C. § 351(a). A chief judge may dismiss a complaint if, following review, he or she finds it is not cognizable under the statute, is directly related to the merits of a decision or procedural ruling, or is frivolous or lacks sufficient evidence to raise an inference of misconduct. See 28

U.S.C. § 352(b)(1)(A)(i)-(iii). Judicial misconduct proceedings are not a substitute for the normal appellate review process and may not be used to seek reversal of a judge's decision, to obtain a new trial, or to request reassignment to a different judge.

Complainant alleges that the district judge violated his due process rights by cancelling hearings without sufficient explanation, which resulted in delay “over a prolonged period, indicating a pattern of behavior rather than isolated incidents.” However, without a showing of an “improper motive in delaying a particular decision or a habitual delay in a significant number of unrelated cases,” delay alone is not cognizable misconduct. See Judicial-Conduct Rule 4(b)(2).

Complainant further alleges that the district judge erred by withholding court documents, unilaterally sealing a settlement agreement, and engaging in “arrangements that deviated from the standard legal process.”

Complainant did not provide “specific dates and locations” of the alleged errors, stating that “they are a matter of record” and “can be confirmed by court records.” However, nothing could be found from a search for the case number provided in the complaint, as well as for the complainant's name, including variant spellings. Accordingly, because no evidence is available to support these allegations, and because the allegations primarily challenge the correctness of various decisions, they are dismissed as unfounded and as impermissible challenges to the merits of the judge's rulings. See 28 U.S.C. § 352(b)(1)(A)(ii), (iii) (listing reasons the chief judge may decide to dismiss the complaint, including that claims are directly related to the merits of a decision, or that claims are lacking sufficient evidence to raise an inference that misconduct has occurred); Judicial-Conduct Rule 11(c)(1)(B), (D).

DISMISSED.
